WILL ASK CONGRESS TO FINANCE BUYING BIG GRAIN SURPLUS

Administration Back Of Stabilization Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — The administration will ask congress for a huge appropriation to enable the federal farm board to carry out its present policy of stabilizing wheat prices by open purchase of the surplus, it was learned today.

Senator Watson, Republican leader of the senate, announced he would lead the fight to secure "any appropriation" asked by Alexander Legge, board chairman, to complete present buying operations, launched ten days ago to stabilize wheat prices. The board's campaign has resulted in the purchase of more than 100,000,000 bushels to date and may total several hundred million bushels.

The policy of a federal agency buying wheat will develop stiff opposition in both house and senate, but the administration very likely will get the necessary funds. Watson announced he would "back Legge to the limit" for the present but that he disapproved of the policy as a permanent program for the relief of agriculture.

Some Democratic opposition to the program also developed. Senator King (D) )of Utah, announced he would oppose further appropriations along this line and hinted he favored abolition of the farm board.

Senator Borah, (R), of Idaho, an insurgent leader, intimated he felt the policy would fail unless the "debenture" were adopted. He declared that "so long as we hold this wheat where all the world can see it, the board's efforts will be of little help to the American farmer." He added though that about 70 per cent of this year's wheat crop in the northwest was still held by farmers, who would benefit by stabilized wheat prices.

The debenture plan, as enacted by the senate several times but always killed in the house, would pay each farmer half the tariff on wheat—or 21 cents a bushel—on each bushel exported. Its sponsors believed this would stabilize the price of wheat at about 21 cents above the world price, since farmers could always sell their grain for export if purchasers for American consumption failed to match that price.

Watson agreed with some of Borah's objections, but insisted that since the buying operation has been started, it should be carried to a conclusion this year.

TOWBOAT BURNED TO WATER'S EDGE; ONE MAN BADLY BURNED

Pilot In Hospital; Second Swims To River Shore

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 20. —Investigation was launched today into the fire which broke out on the towboat Margaret plying the Ohio river three miles north of here last night and burned the craft to the water's edge.

Gail Justice, 55, pilot of the boat, was seriously injured as the flames swept the craft. He remained at his post in the pilot house until he had nosed his ill-fated craft from midstream to the Ohio shore.

Rescuers who managed to reach him when the craft touched the shoreline, found the man unconscious. His clothing had been burned nearly off. He was brought to a local hospital in a skiff.

Carl Smith, who was also on the boat when the fire broke out, leaped into the river as the flames spread and swam ashore.

Smith said the fire was caused when the gasoline tank of the craft exploded. He was unable to ascertain the cause of the explosion, however.

Fog And Darkness Cause Of Wreck

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 20. — Clad in bathrobes, overcoats and various apparel hastily donned, the 580 passengers and crews of the British liner Highland Hope, which crashed upon the rocks at the Farilhoes twenty-five miles north of here, were brought to Lisbon today by automobile from the coastal point where they were landed by rescuers.

Fog and intense darkness was blamed for the accident. Passengers stated that their rescue was one of the most efficiently handled pieces of work as yet accomplished.

The 14,000-ton steamer, recently launched, was believed doomed. Tugs attempted to pull her off the rocks, but latest reports indicated that little hope remained of saving either ship or cargo.

COUNTER-OFFENSE PROPOSED BY DRYS; TO ASK $5,000,000

Campaign To "Sell Prohibition" Aim Of Dry Forces

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Reluctantly coming to the conclusion that prohibition is facing a crisis, and that if it is to be saved energetic efforts must be put forth, dry leaders here have decided to launch a counter-offensive against the very evident wet drift revealed in the elections two weeks ago.

Its aim, according to Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, "is mainly education." He wants to enlist educators, business men, economists, and professional men generally in a national drive to "sell prohibition" to the country. Particularly, the hope is to convince American business that prohibition is economically valuable and worth saving.

Dr. McBride has hopes of raising a $5,000,000 budget for expenditure during the next year. Where it is to come from is not yet apparent.

All of the twenty-odd prohibition organizations such as the League, the W. C. T. U., the Methodist Board of Temperance, prohibition and public morals, have been seriously embarassed for several years by lack of funds. Revenues started dropping off simultaneously with the apparent national drift against prohibition, and in recent months the dry organizations have had to sharply curtail their activities to conform with their budgets.

At the same time, there has been a steady growth of anti-prohibition organizations, well-financed and well-directed.

A number of quiet conferences have been held here by dry leaders since the November 4 election. More will be held between now and January 1. These conferences have had to do principally with where to get the funds to finance the national drive which Dr. McBride speaks of.

Probably before the first of the year there will be a general conference of dry leaders held here or in New York, to map out the plans for the great offensive.

BULL FIGHT WILL NOT BE STOPPED

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 20.—While protests poured in today from all parts of the country against the proposed bull fight here November 30, city officials said today the affair would not be objectionable. They said it was to be merely an "exhibition" with Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn toreador, just returned from Spain, as the chief performer.

No animals would cruelly treated, officials and promoters of the fight said.

Among the protests was one from Minnie Maddern Fiske, famous actress. From New Haven, where she urged Yale students to send New Jersey officials a petition against the bull fight, Mrs. Fiske sent word that the affair "would be a step backward in sport."

Another woman complained, asking the promoters: "How would you like to be the bull?

As a result elaborate wedding plans and parties were called off.

COLD WAVE FOLLOWING RAIN PROPHECY AFTER RECORD NOVEMBER HEAT

Thirty-Year Record Is Broken; Winter Moves Eastward

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20. —With all previous heat records established on November 19 in the history of the Columbus branch of the U. S. weather bureau broken, moderate temperatures continued to prevail in Ohio today.

Mercury rose to 72 degrees yesterday. The previous record for November 19 was registered in 1900 when the mercury reached 69 degrees.

Rain was predicted to fall this afternoon or tonight after which a cold wave may be expected, according to weather forecaster Alexander.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 20. — Snowfall and blizzards which held the Rocky mountains in their grip for the past twenty-four hours were moving eastward today after claiming two lives and crippling transportation and communication channels.

The wintry weather had claimed two lives while twelve others were trapped by the snow. The dead were Dr. H. F. Harp, who was killed in a traffic accident at El Paso, Texas, due to blinding snow, and William Godfrey, chief forest ranger of Crater Lake National Park, Ore., who died after a struggle in snow forty-four inches deep.

Anxiety was felt for twelve other persons who were believed trapped in the Gila National Forest of New Mexico.

Denver was under twelve inches of snow and transcontinental air mail was paralyzed over both the northern and southern routes across the Rocky mountains.

A sudden drop in temperature was forecast for the Mississippi valley region by nightfall.

BROWN WILL SUBMIT SUGGESTED POSTAL RAISE TO CONGRESS

Increase Apparently Doomed; Solons Are Opposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Postmaster-General Brown has decided to submit to congress his proposal to raise the cost of letter postage to two and a half cents despite advice from members that it is doomed to defeat, it was learned today.

The recommendation is expected to be considered by postoffice committees of both senate and house, and strong opposition is indicated.

Rep. Kelly (R) of Pennsylvania, member of the house committee, declared Brown's proposal is entirely without justification.

"The postmaster-general's report for 1929 shows a profit of $84,000,000 on first class mail at the present rate," said Kelly. "A loss is reported on all other classes of mail. It seems illogical to add $75,000,000 to the cost of first class postage.

"I have suggested that one-half of all postoffice expense be charged against first class mail because it is the primary service of the department.

"Even on that basis the rate on first class mail brings in revenue to meet the expense of handling it.

"The two-cent rate on letters was fixed in 1883. It is astounding that forty-seven years afterwards with the unit cost of handling mail decreasing, we should now be considering an increase in the rate. Increasing the volume of mail is a far better way of raising revenue.

"I do not believe congress will act favorably upon the recommendation for the increase."

Kelly is author of the postal policy law enacted by congress under which the annual expense of $40,000,000 for handling government mail free is not included in the deficit.

Excluding this, the department predicts a $55,000,000 deficit for the year 1930.

AUTOIST KILLED

REPUBLICANS WILL HELP DEMOCRATS IN OHIO LEGISLATURE

Pledge Guarantees Legislation For Best Interests

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20. —Rays of sunshine broke through the legislative clouds on Governor-Elect George White's horizon today.

An influential member of the Cuyahoga delegation to the next regular session of the Ohio legislature, which convenes here January 5, today said that enough Republican members of the delegation may line up with the Democratic minority to insure passage of legislation this winter that is sponsored, or approved, by the new chief executive of the Buckeye state.

Up until today it had been taken as a matter of course that the G. O. P. leaders, by reason of the Republican majority in both the senate and house, would be in a position to thwart the enactment of measures designed to carry out policies embodied in Governor-elect White's legislative program.

On paper, the Republicans have a majority of four in the senate and twelve in the house, the political alignment being: in the senate, eighteen Republicans and fourteen Democrats; in the house, seventy Republicans and fifty-eight Democrats.

Of the Republican senators, three are from Cleveland. In the house, twelve of the Republican members belong to the Cuyahoga County delegation. If the trio of Cleveland G. O. P. senators and a majority of the Republican house members from Cuyahoga County vote with the solid Democratic majorities, they can defeat G. O. P. legislative plans.

State Senator Joseph N. Ackerman, Republican, of Cleveland, today declared his willingness to cooperate with the incoming Democratic state administration in the enactment of legislation intended to further the best interests of the citizens of Ohio and improve conditions among the inmates and wards of the various state institutions.

He indicated that other Republican members of the Cuyahoga County delegation to the legislature are similarly inclined. Ackerman said he plans to confer with Governor-elect White relative to the legislative situation.

The Cuyahoga County solons comprise three Republican and two Democratic senators, together with twelve Republican and five Democratic members of the house. The five Cleveland senators are: Ackerman, L. L. Marshall and Laurence H. Norton, Republicans, and former lieutenant Governor William A. Greenlund and James A. Reynolds, Democrats. Ackerman and Marshall served in the senate during the last session. Norton was a member of the house two years ago. Greenlund and Reynolds are former state senators.

DO-X FORCED DOWN BY BAD WEATHER

SANTANDER, Spain, Nov. 20.—The giant German flying boat DO-X, enroute from Bordeaux to Corunna, Spain, landed unexpectedly near here today.

Bad weather forced the flying boat to descend, three hours and thirty-five minutes after taking off from Bordeaux, for Corunna.

The huge air liner made a good landing about 50 yards off shore and was immediately moored to a temporary anchorage.

It was unlikely the flight to Corunna would be resumed today.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Treasury statement as of Nov. 18:

Expenditures, $7, 400,333.21.
Customs receipts, $21,802,352.32.

BERT BUCKLEY IS FREED THURSDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Bert B. Buckley, former state treasurer, was to be released today from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta where he has served eighteen months of a sentence on conviction of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

Buckley was sentenced to two years, six months and one day. He was paroled by the federal parole board last week.

Mrs. Buckley, who has been living in Columbus since her husband's conviction, said that she would go to Cincinnati tomorrow morning to meet the former state official.

THREE KILLED WHEN MAIL PLANE CRASHES

Pilot And Two Passengers Die In Wreck Of Plane In Mountains; Wind And Fog Blamed; Probe Started

ANTELOPE VALLEY AIRPORT, Calif., Nov. 20. — Bodies of the three occupants of the Pacific Transport Air Mail plane which crashed in the Tehachapi Mountains were moved to Los Angeles today while an investigation of the crash was begun.

The battered and torn fuselage and wings were found yesterday afternoon on a rolling hillside by Edward Newson, a rancher. The discovery ended a 43-hour search which was participated in by more than thirty airplanes and searchers on foot.

Pilot Flavius A. Donaldson was dead in his cockpit while the bodies of Miss Jean Karkow Smidt and George Rogers, two passengers, had been tossed clear of the wreckage. The mail cargo, consisting of several pouches of valuable registered mail, was found intact.

The plane was last heard from early Tuesday morning when its radio told that pilot Donaldson was fighting heavy winds and fog high above the treacherous Tehachapi Mountain peaks.

WILL SPEAK HERE

W. G. Pickrel, above, lieutenant governor-elect will be the speaker at the dinner inaugurating the community Chest drive in Xenia at the Elk's Club Thursday evening.

OBSERVERS PONDER CHOICE OF HIGHWAY DIRECTOR FOR OHIO

Boulay Mentioned; Waid Scheduled As First To Go.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Political observers in the capitol here today turned their speculations toward the probable make-up of the cabinet of Governor-elect George White when he takes over the reins of the state government January 12.

There is practically certain to be a change at the post of state highway director and already the names of five men have been selected as the most likely candidates for the job, which commands a salary of $6,500 annually.

Those suggested include a former state highway commissioner and four former highway division engineers. They are:

L. A. Boulay, Toledo; O. W. Merrell, Marietta; Grover C. Snyder, Marion; T. S. Brindle, Ashland, and Fred E. Swineford, Akron.

Boulay was highway director for a time under former Governor Vic Donahey. Merrell, Snyder, Brindle and Swineford were highway division engineers in the Donahey administration. Merrell was employed in district No. 10, Snyder in district No. 6, Brindle in district No. 3 and Swineford in district No. 4. Brindle was chief engineer of the highway department under former Governor James M. Cox. Swineford is director of public service at Akron now.

The new highway director will take office January 12 immediately after Governor-elect White is sworn in as governor. He will succeed Robert N. Waid, Columbus, Republican.

EXPECT 250 WILL ATTEND CHEST CAMPAIGN DINNER THURSDAY

Everyone connected in any way with the Xenia Community Chest drive is urged to attend the community dinner-meeting, the campaign "kick-off," planned for 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the Elks' Club, at which William G. Pickrel, Dayton, lieutenant-governor-elect of Ohio, will deliver the principal address.

Reservations for the dinner are coming in slowly but chest officials are hopeful that a majority of the approximately 250 representative Xenians to whom invitations were sent will be on hand.

Those who should attend, it is pointed out, include not only divisional team workers, their leaders, but also executives and board members of all the participating agencies and all others who have any part small or large in the campaign work.

T. H. Zell, who heads the local drive for the second time in the last three years, will probably act as chairman of the meeting. Last-minute instructions to all the workers will also be issued at the meeting as the campaign will be formally inaugurated Friday morning.

YOUTH QUESTIONED IN FATAL SHOOTING OF JAMESTOWN BOY

Victim's Companion Held In Jail Here By Authorities

Because authorities are still unsatisfied in their own minds that the fatal shooting of William Orlyn Bell, 13, colored, Jamestown at noon Wednesday was accidental, as was first supposed, Melvin Davis, 14, colored, also of Jamestown, is being held in the juvenile detention quarters at the county jail for further questioning.

First reports indicated the Bell boy had accidentally discharged a bullet from a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle into his head, but an investigation made by Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner; Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall, Sheriff Ohmer Tate and John Baughn, Jamestown marshal and sheriff-elect, raised a doubt in their minds that the boy had actually shot himself.

Authorities spent hours questioning the Davis boy Wednesday and certain discrepancies in his answers resulted in the decision to hold him for further investigation.

The bullet from the rifle pierced the Bell boy's forehead between the eyes and he died twenty minutes later without recovering consciousness so that his version of the shooting could not be obtained.

Questioned about the affair, the Davis boy first told authorities that he and Bell had gone to the Davis home to inspect the rifle, which the Davis boy had purchased for fifteen cents from another boy a few days before. According to Davis he and his companion were examining the weapon when it discharged accidentally, inflicting the fatal wound.

The only available witness found by authorities was Robert Hoosier, who was repairing his auto about seventy-five feet away and did not see the actual shooting, although he looked up after the shot was fired. He informed authorities that he heard the two boys quarreling and that they were standing facing each other in the yard at the Davis residence. He was looking in another direction, however, when the rifle was discharged, Hoosier said.

Officers say the Davis boy admitted to them that he and the Bell boy had been arguing about shooting pigeons.

The dead youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Bell and the Davis boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis.

SHRIVELED EAR IS REFUSED IN COURT

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Nov. 20.—The state was expected to rest its case today in the murder trial of Joseph Rossi, 33, Ashtabula poolroom proprietor, who is charged with the slaying of an unidentified foreigner.

Fifteen witnesses were examined by the prosecution yesterday.

The shriveled ear which was found in an automobile belonging to Frank Marafiotte, of Dennison, could not be introduced as evidence as belonging to the victim, whose body was found beaten to death in a Dennison street, the court ruled yesterday.

Physicians testifying in the case would not connect the ear with the victim's head, from which both ears were cut.

ABANDONS TRIP

With his wife, formerly Dolores Costello, Barrymore is now in Guatemala.

MAURETANIA PICKS UP REFUGEES FROM ABANDONED VESSEL

Makes Record Time; Captain's Wife Is Among Rescued

ABOARD THE S. S. MAURETANIA, Nov. 20. — The liner Mauretania today plowed through fast running seas to New York, her passenger list augmented unexpectedly by the dramatic rescue of twenty-eight persons, one of them a woman, from the sunken Swedish cargo steamer Ovidia.

Summoned from her mid-Atlantic course by the distressed ship's SOS flashed out at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, the Mauretania began a nine-hour dash under full steam through heavy seas to reach the Ovidia.

Two United States vessels, the liners Endicott and America also responded to the call for help, but slower progress put them in the wake of the Mauretania, which covered a distance of 216 miles to the sinking vessel in record time.

The Ovidia reported she was leaking in the forward hold and in sinking condition with twenty-eight persons aboard, among them Mrs. Carlsson, wife of the captain.

Upon receipt of the SOS captain McNeil of the Mauretania immediately altered the course of his giant vessel and plunged her at full speed in the direction of the sinking vessel. The passengers aboard remained in total ignorance of the change in course and the dramatic mission upon which they were engaged.

The Mauretania, Endicott and America conversed continually with the Ovidia by wireless. Officers and passengers of the ocean queen today were of the opinion that the Mauretania's quick dash to the distressed vessel must be credited largely to a marvelous piece of wireless direction finding.

The Ovidia was located wallowing in mammoth waves and her decks awash. She was observed at times canting suddenly with a tremendous list as her cargo obviously slid about and shifted. The ship had sunk almost to its lower decks, leaving only the upper parts of the masts visible to those on deck of the approaching liner.

One engine was still working on the crippled ship as the Mauretania drew alongside. The liner circled around the Ovidia for nearly an hour before those on the cargo steamer abandoned hope of saving their vessel.

The America's hull hove over the horizon as the Ovidia's dynamo gave out.

Even as the life boats fought clear of the Ovidia the mother ship was plainly observed to be sinking fast.

Masterly seamanship brought the Mauretania to within fifty yards of the doomed vessel, shortening the hazardous moments for those in the frail lifeboats.

The last view of the Ovidia came as the Mauretania steamed slowly back into her course, the cargo ship, bowing and dipping in the sea, was soon to disappear from view.

COMMIT M'BRIDE TO INSANE HOSPITAL

CARROLLTON, O., Nov. 20.—Emmett McBride, brother of F. Scott McBride, head of the Anti-Saloon League of America, today was awaiting confinement to the state hospital for the insane at Massillon.

He was ordered committed to the institution late yesterday when he was arraigned here on a charge of issuing fraudulent checks.

McBride was brought here several weeks ago from Washington, D. C., where he was arrested. Officials said he was insane and his case was taken before the probate court.

BOOTLEG WHISKEY SEIZED BY POLICE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—Alleged bootleg whiskey, wine and gin valued at more than $90,000 was in possession of police here today following one of the largest liquor seizures in the history of prohibition last night.

Three men who were found in the restaurant basement where the alleged liquor was discovered, were arrested by police. The raid netted 250 cases of alleged uncut whiskey, 285 cases of cut whiskey, 100 cases of gin and 300 cases of wine, according to police officials.

BULL GORES WOMAN

FOSTORIA, O., Nov. 20.—Having been gored by a bull on a farm near here, Mrs. Ralph Weaver was reported to be in a serious condition today. Neighbors rescued the woman after she had been thrown fifteen feet by the enraged animal.

Harp, who was killed in a traffic accident at El Paso, Texas, due to blinding snow, and William Godfrey, chief forest ranger of Crater Lake National Park, Ore., who died after a struggle in snow forty-four inches deep.

Anxiety was felt for twelve other persons who were believed trapped in the Gila National Forest of New Mexico.

Denver was under twelve inches of snow and transcontinental air mail was paralyzed over both the northern and southern routes across the Rocky mountains.

A sudden drop in temperature was forecast for the Mississippi valley region by nightfall.

BROWN WILL SUBMIT SUGGESTED POSTAL RAISE TO CONGRESS

Increase Apparently Doomed; Solons Are Opposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Postmaster-General Brown has decided to submit to congress his proposal to raise the cost of letter postage to two and a half cents despite advice from members that it is doomed to defeat, it was learned today.

The recommendation is expected to be considered by postoffice committees of both senate and house, and strong opposition is indicated.

Rep. Kelly (R) of Pennsylvania, member of the house committee, declared Brown's proposal is entirely without justification.

"The postmaster-general's report for 1929 shows a profit of $84,000,000 on first class mail at the present rate," said Kelly. "A loss is reported on all other classes of mail. It seems illogical to add $75,000,000 to the cost of first class postage.

"I have suggested that one-half of all postoffice expense be charged against first class mail because it is the primary service of the department.

"Even on that basis the rate on first class mail brings in revenue to meet the expense of handling it.

"The two-cent rate on letters was fixed in 1883. It is astounding that forty-seven years afterwards with the unit cost of handling mail decreasing, we should now be considering an increase in the rate. Increasing the volume of mail is a far better way of raising revenue.

"I do not believe congress will act favorably upon the recommendation for the increase."

Kelly is author of the postal policy law enacted by congress under which the annual expense of $40,000,000 for handling government mail free is not included in the deficit.

Excluding this, the department predicts a $55,000,000 deficit for the year 1930.

AUTOIST KILLED

CALDWELL, O., Nov. 20.—Enroute to his home from Mount Ephriam Hospital at Zanesville, where he had been under treatment for his eyes, Daniel Bates, 70-year-old farmer, was killed near here last night when his automobile overturned into a ditch.

REPUBLICANS WILL HELP DEMOCRATS IN OHIO LEGISLATURE

Pledge Guarantees Legislation For Best Interests

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20. —Rays of sunshine broke through the legislative clouds on Governor-Elect George White's horizon today.

An influential member of the Cuyahoga delegation to the next regular session of the Ohio legislature, which convenes here January 5, today said that enough Republican members of the delegation may line up with the Democratic minority to insure passage of legislation this winter that is sponsored, or approved, by the new chief executive of the Buckeye state.

Up until today it had been taken as a matter of course that the G. O. P. leaders, by reason of the Republican majority in both the senate and house, would be in a position to thwart the enactment of measures designed to carry out policies embodied in Governor-elect White's legislative program.

On paper, the Republicans have a majority of four in the senate and twelve in the house, the political alignment being: in the senate, eighteen Republicans and fourteen Democrats; in the house, seventy Republicans and fifty-eight Democrats.

Of the Republican senators, three are from Cleveland. In the house, twelve of the Republican members belong to the Cuyahoga County delegation. If the trio of Cleveland G. O. P. senators and a majority of the Republican house members from Cuyahoga County vote with the solid Democratic majorities, they can defeat G. O. P. legislative plans.

State Senator Joseph N. Ackerman, Republican, of Cleveland, today declared his willingness to cooperate with the incoming Democratic state administration in the enactment of legislation intended to further the best interests of the citizens of Ohio and improve conditions among the inmates and wards of the various state institutions.

He indicated that other Republican members of the Cuyahoga County delegation to the legislature are similarly inclined. Ackerman said he plans to confer with Governor-elect White relative to the legislative situation.

The Cuyahoga County solons comprise three Republican and two Democratic senators, together with twelve Republican and five Democratic members of the house. The five Cleveland senators are: Ackerman, L. L. Marshall and Laurence H. Norton, Republicans, and former lieutenant Governor William A. Greenlund and James A. Reynolds, Democrats. Ackerman and Marshall served in the senate during the last session. Norton was a member of the house two years ago. Greenlund and Reynolds are former state senators.

DO-X FORCED DOWN BY BAD WEATHER

SANTANDER, Spain, Nov. 20.—The giant German flying boat DO-X, enroute from Bordeaux to Corunna, Spain, landed unexpectedly near here today.

Bad weather forced the flying boat to descend, three hours and thirty-five minutes after taking off from Bordeaux, for Corunna.

The huge air liner made a good landing about 50 yards off shore and was immediately moored to a temporary anchorage.

It was unlikely the flight to Corunna would be resumed today.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Treasury statement as of Nov. 18:

Treasury balance, 104,156,793.12.

Expenditures, $7, 400,333.21.

Customs receipts, $21,802,352.32.

BERT BUCKLEY IS FREED THURSDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Bert B. Buckley, former state treasurer, was to be released today from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta where he has served eighteen months of a sentence on conviction of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

Buckley was sentenced to two years, six months and one day. He was paroled by the federal parole board last week.

Mrs. Buckley, who has been living in Columbus since her husband's conviction, said that she would go to Cincinnati tomorrow morning to meet the former state official.

THREE KILLED WHEN MAIL PLANE CRASHES

Pilot And Two Passengers Die In Wreck Of Plane In Mountains; Wind And Fog Blamed; Probe Started

ANTELOPE VALLEY AIRPORT, Calif., Nov. 20. — Bodies of the three occupants of the Pacific Transport Air Mail plane which crashed in the Tehachapi Mountains were moved to Los Angeles today while an investigation of the crash was begun.

The battered and torn fuselage and wings were found yesterday afternoon on a rolling hillside by Edward Newson, a rancher. The discovery ended a 43-hour search which was participated in by more than thirty airplanes and searchers on foot.

Pilot Flavius A. Donaldson was dead in his cockpit while the bodies of Miss Jean Karkow Smidt and George Rogers, two passengers, had been tossed clear of the wreckage. The mail cargo, consisting of several pouches of valuable registered mail, was found intact.

The plane was last heard from early Tuesday morning when its radio told that pilot Donaldson was fighting heavy winds and fog high above the treacherous Tehachapi Mountain peaks.

WILL SPEAK HERE

W. G. Pickrel, above, lieutenant governor-elect will be the speaker at the dinner inaugurating the community Chest drive in Xenia at the Elk's Club Thursday evening.

OBSERVERS PONDER CHOICE OF HIGHWAY DIRECTOR FOR OHIO

Boulay Mentioned; Waid Scheduled As First To Go.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Political observers in the capitol here today turned their speculations toward the probable make-up of the cabinet of Governor-elect George White when he takes over the reins of the state government January 12.

There is practically certain to be a change at the post of state highway director and already the names of five men have been selected as the most likely candidates for the job, which commands a salary of $6,500 annually.

Those suggested include a former state highway commissioner and four former highway division engineers. They are:

L. Al Boulay, Toledo; O. W. Merrell, Marietta; Grover C. Snyder, Marion; T. S. Brindle, Ashland, and Fred E. Swineford, Akron.

Boulay was highway director for a time under former Governor Vic Donahey. Merrell, Snyder, Brindle and Swineford were highway division engineers in the Donahey administration. Merrell was employed in district No. 10, Snyder in district No. 6, Brindle in district No. 3 and Swineford in district No. 4. Brindle was chief engineer of the highway department under former Governor James M. Cox. Swineford is director of public service at Akron now.

The new highway director will take office January 12 immediately after Governor-elect White is sworn in as governor. He will succeed Robert N. Waid, Columbus, Republican.

EXPECT 250 WILL ATTEND CHEST CAMPAIGN DINNER THURSDAY

Everyone connected in any way with the Xenia Community Chest drive is urged to attend the community dinner-meeting, the campaign "kick-off," planned for 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the Elks' Club, at which William G. Pickrel, Dayton, lieutenant-governor-elect of Ohio, will deliver the principal address.

Reservations for the dinner are coming in slowly but chest officials are hopeful that a majority of the approximately 250 representative Xenians to whom invitations were sent will be on hand.

Those who should attend, it is pointed out, include not only divisional team workers, their leaders, but also executives and board members of all the participating agencies and all others who have any part small or large in the campaign work.

T. H. Zell, who heads the local drive for the second time in the last three years, will probably act as chairman of the meeting. Last-minute instructions to all the workers will also be issued at the meeting as the campaign will be formally inaugurated Friday morning.

YOUTH QUESTIONED IN FATAL SHOOTING OF JAMESTOWN BOY

Victim's Companion Held In Jail Here By Authorities

Because authorities are still unsatisfied in their own minds that the fatal shooting of William Orlyn Bell, 13, colored, Jamestown at noon Wednesday was accidental, as was first supposed, Melvin Davis, 14, colored, also of Jamestown, is being held in the juvenile detention quarters at the county jail for further questioning.

First reports indicated the Bell boy had accidentally discharged a bullet from a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle into his head, but an investigation made by Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner; Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall, Sheriff Ohmer Tate and John Baughn, Jamestown marshal and sheriff-elect, raised a doubt in their minds that the boy had actually shot himself.

Authorities spent hours questioning the Davis boy Wednesday and certain discrepancies in his answers resulted in the decision to hold him for further investigation.

The bullet from the rifle pierced the Bell boy's forehead between the eyes and he died twenty minutes later without recovering consciousness so that his version of the shooting could not be obtained.

Questioned about the affair, the Davis boy first told authorities that he and Bell had gone to the Davis home to inspect the rifle, which the Davis boy had purchased for fifteen cents from another boy a few days before. According to Davis he and his companion were examining the weapon when it discharged accidentally, inflicting the fatal wound.

The only available witness found by authorities was Robert Hoosier, who was repairing his auto about seventy-five feet away and did not see the actual shooting, although he looked up after the shot was fired. He informed authorities that he heard the two boys quarreling and that they were standing facing each other in the yard at the Davis residence. He was looking in another direction, however, when the rifle was discharged, Hoosier said.

Officers say the Davis boy admitted to them that he and the Bell boy had been arguing about shooting pigeons.

The dead youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Bell and the Davis boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis.

SHRIVELED EAR IS REFUSED IN COURT

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Nov. 20.—The state was expected to rest its case today in the murder trial of Joseph Rossi, 33, Ashtabula poolroom proprietor, who is charged with the slaying of an unidentified foreigner.

Fifteen witnesses were examined by the prosecution yesterday.

The shriveled ear which was found in an automobile belonging to Frank Marafiotte, of Dennison, could not be introduced as evidence as belonging to the victim, whose body was found beaten to death in a Dennison street, the court ruled yesterday.

Physicians testifying in the case would not connect the ear with the victim's head, from which both ears were cut.

ABANDONS TRIP

COLON, P. C. Z., Nov. 20.— Ill health has compelled John Barrymore, motion picture star, to abandon temporarily his tour of Central American countries, according to reports here today.

With his wife, formerly Dolores Costello, Barrymore is now in Guatemala.

MAURETANIA PICKS UP REFUGEES FROM ABANDONED VESSEL

Makes Record Time; Captain's Wife Is Among Rescued

ABOARD THE S. S. MAURETANIA, Nov. 20. — The liner Mauretania today plowed through fast running seas to New York, her passenger list augmented unexpectedly by the dramatic rescue of twenty-eight persons, one of them a woman, from the sunken Swedish cargo steamer Ovidia.

Summoned from her mid-Atlantic course by the distressed ship's SOS flashed out at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, the Mauretania began a nine-hour dash under full steam through heavy seas to reach the Ovidia.

Two United States vessels, the liners Endicott and America also responded to the call for help, but slower progress put them in the wake of the Mauretania, which covered a distance of 216 miles to the sinking vessel in record time.

The Ovidia reported she was leaking in the forward hold and in sinking condition with twenty-eight persons aboard, among them Mrs. Carlsson, wife of the captain.

Upon receipt of the SOS captain McNeil of the Mauretania immediately altered the course of his giant vessel and plunged her at full speed in the direction of the sinking vessel. The passengers aboard remained in total ignorance of the change in course and the dramatic mission upon which they were engaged.

The Mauretania, Endicott and America conversed continually with the Ovidia by wireless. Officers and passengers of the ocean queen today were of the opinion that the Mauretania's quick dash to the distressed vessel must be credited largely to a marvelous piece of wireless direction finding.

The Ovidia was located wallowing in mammoth waves and her decks awash. She was observed at times canting suddenly with a tremendous list as her cargo obviously slid about and shifted. The ship had sunk almost to its lower decks, leaving only the upper parts of the masts visible to those on deck of the approaching liner.

One engine was still working on the crippled ship as the Mauretania drew alongside. The liner circled around the Ovidia for nearly an hour before those on the cargo steamer abandoned hope of saving their vessel.

The America's hull hove over the horizon as the Ovidia's dynamo gave out.

Even as the life boats fought clear of the Ovidia the mother ship was plainly observed to be sinking fast.

Masterly seamanship brought the Mauretania to within fifty yards of the doomed vessel, shortening the hazardous moments for those in the frail lifeboats.

The last view of the Ovidia came as the Mauretania steamed slowly back into her course, the cargo ship, bowing and dipping in the sea, was soon to disappear from view.

COMMIT M'BRIDE TO INSANE HOSPITAL

CARROLLTON, O., Nov. 20.—Emmett McBride, brother of F. Scott McBride, head of the Anti-Saloon League of America, today was awaiting confinement to the state hospital for the insane at Massillon.

He was ordered committed to the institution late yesterday when he was arraigned here on a charge of issuing fraudulent checks.

McBride was brought here several weeks ago from Washington, D. C., where he was arrested. Officials said he was insane and his case was taken before the probate court.

BOOTLEG WHISKEY SEIZED BY POLICE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—Alleged bootleg whiskey, wine and gin valued at more than $90,000 was in possession of police here today following one of the largest liquor seizures in the history of prohibition last night.

Three men who were found in the restaurant basement where the alleged liquor was discovered, were arrested by police. The raid netted 250 cases of alleged uncut whiskey, 285 cases of cut whiskey, 100 cases of gin and 300 cases of wine, according to police officials.

BULL GORES WOMAN

FOSTORIA, O., Nov. 20.—Having been gored by a bull on a farm near here, Mrs. Ralph Weaver was reported to be in a serious condition today. Neighbors rescued the woman after she had been thrown fifteen feet by the enraged animal.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Interesting Paper Marks D. A. R. Meeting

A vivid picture of the Old National Road, including its origin, development and present day condition, was portrayed to members of Catharine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when Miss Allegra Hawes read a paper at the meeting of the chapter at the home of Mrs. C. L. Jobe, E. Market St., Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Hawes explained that the idea of the National Road was conceived by Henry Clay, who introduced a bill for the National Road in congress in 1802. The road was opened in 1820 at a cost of $6,800,000. The road was a boom to Ohio at that time as it opened the settlement of the Northwest territory.

Miss Hawes' paper contained many interesting stories and incidents of the days of the stage coaches and road taverns and was well received by club members. The Old National Road starts in Maryland and passes through Springfield, O. It is marked by "Madonnas of the Trail," there being one of these markers at Springfield.

A short business session was held by members preceding Miss Hawes' paper. Later a social hour was enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Jobe, assisted by Mrs. Laura Alexander, Mrs. J. A. Chew and Mrs. M. W. Monroe.

FORMER XENIANS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The Rev. V. F. Brown, former pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, this city, and Mrs. Brown will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Saturday in Dayton. Besides being their wedding anniversary it will mark the completion of a half century of service in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the Rev. Mr. Brown.

The Rev. and Mrs. Brown, who now reside at 501 Edgewood Ave., Dayton, are informally inviting their friends to a reception in the Chinese Room of the Miami Hotel Saturday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. Many members of Trinity M. E. Church and other Xenians are planning to attend the reception.

The Rev. Dr. Brown was pastor of Trinity Church here for eight years. He left here three years ago when he was transferred to the pastorate of the M. E. Church at West Carrollton. After serving there for two years he retired from active service in the ministry and since has made his residence in Dayton.

EPISCOPAL GUILD MEETS WEDNESDAY.

Members of St. Agnes Guild of Christ Episcopal Church were entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Sarah B. Hagar, N. Galloway St. Mrs. Charles W. Adair conducted the devotional period, which opened with a Thanksgiving hymn. Miss Hagar delighted the guests with a piono solo, "Consolation" by Mendelssohn, which she interpreted beautifully.

A short business meeting was followed by the afternoon's program, the first of a series of delightful programs planned for this winter. Reports of the Cincinnati convention of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church of the southern Ohio diocese, of which Miss Emery was appointed its first president in 1871, were given by Miss Hagar and Mrs. C. H. Little. Later a refreshment course was served by the hostess.

TEA GIVEN AT FIRST U. P. CHURCH WEDNESDAY

The second division of the Ladies Aid Society of the First United Presbyterian Church entertained the women of the First and Second U. P. Churches at a tea in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon.

Choosing as her subject, "Incidents By the Way," Mrs. John P. White delighted the audience with an account of several interesting incidents which she encountered while in Europe the past summer. Mrs. William J. Cherry and Mrs. John Davidson each sang a solo, accompanied at the piano by Miss Margaret Moorehead.

A social hour followed and tea was served by Mrs. C. S. Frazer, and Mrs. Austin M. Patterson, chairmen of the division. They were assisted by Mrs. James Savage, Mrs. Walter Dean, Mrs. J. E. Waddle, Mrs. John McCalmont, Mrs. D. W. Cherry, Mrs. Carl Ervin and Mrs. E. C. Moorman.

COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE THURSDAY

Miss Eva Longstreth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Longstreth, Fairfield, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard Kollofrath, Osborn, Thursday at noon at the First Lutheran Church, this city. The single ring service was read by the Rev. Harvey Crowell, pastor of the Lutheran Church, Osborn, assisted by the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold.

Witnesses at the ceremony were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Longstreth, Mrs. Alice Donall and Miss Louise Vance, all of Osborn. Following the ceremony dinner was enjoyed at the Frances Inn, S. Detroit St.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Kollofrath left for a short wedding trip. They expect to visit in Wilmington and Marion, O. Upon their return to Fairfield they will reside with the bride's parents. Mr. Kollofrath is employed as a telegraph operator for the Big Four Railroad in Osborn.

D. T. C. C. TO GIVE HOLIDAY PARTY.

Plans for a dinner-dance to be given during the Christmas holidays for members of the Downtown Country Club and their guests were made at a meeting of the club at Trebein Tavern, Dayton Pike, Wednesday evening. Preceding the club meeting members enjoyed a turkey dinner.

The Messrs. Howell Huston, John Wood and Harold Parrett were appointed on the committee to make arrangements for the holiday party. Besides the dinner and dance there will be cards for those who do not care to dance. The date and place of the party will be announced later.

DISPLAYS CHINESE ARTICLES HERE

Mr. Dickson F. Steinbeck, student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, whose home is in China and whose parents are missionaries there, will display an Oriental collection at the home of Mrs. Howard Little, 810 N. King St., Friday afternoon and evening.

The display consists of Chinese jewelry, embroideries, linens, rugs and other articles, personally selected by Mr. Steinbeck. Any one interested is cordially invited to view the display. It will prove particularly interesting to members of the Junior Woman's Club, as "China" is the subject being studied by the club this year.

Mrs. Dennis Phelan, Cincinnati, is the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sayre, N. King St.

LOCAL ELKS ATTEND SPRINGFIELD INITIATION

A number of Xenians, members of the local Elks Lodge, attended an initiation and banquet at the Elks' Lodge in Springfield Wednesday evening. Initiation was was put on by the national champion degree team from Wilmington. Following this ceremony a turkey banquet was served the guests.

One hundred and seventy-five Elks were present from Dayton, Washington C. H., Wilmington, Middletown, Hamilton and other cities. Local Elks attending were the Messrs. I. Friedman, John Fuerle, Robert McIntire, James Savage, William Baxley, Kenneth Elliott and Earl Confer.

Miss Josephine Wolf, N. King St., left Tuesday for Pasadena, Calif., where she expects to spend the winter with friends. Enroute to California she will spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wagner, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Rusell Greiner, Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Wolf, Denver, Colo.

Mrs. C. W. Jones, Anderson, Ind., arrived here Thursday to be the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Babb, N. Galloway St. Dr. Jones will join her here Saturday for the week end.

Mr. Ray Cox, who underwent a serious operation at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, several weeks ago, will be removed to his home on N. Galloway St., Friday. He is recovering nicely.

Mr. Robert McConnell returned to his home in Rising Sun, Ind., Thursday after spending a week here with Dr. and Mrs. Paul D. Espey, N. Detroit St. Mrs. Espey and Mr. McConnell are cousins.

Mr. John G. Eavey, Pleasant St., is recovering nicely from his recent operation for appendicitis, although he is still confined at McClellan Hospital.

XENIA HONORED BY REBEKAH DISTRICT

Mrs. Fred Snyder, 650 S. Detroit St., was elevated president of the fifty-third district of Rebekah Lodges of Ohio at a special school of instruction of Rebekah Lodges of this district at South Vienna, Wednesday. Mrs. H. W. Cleaver, E. Third St., was elected warden for this district.

Wednesday's meeting was an all day affair and Mrs. Jennie Herman, president of the Ohio Rebekah Assembly, presided. Phoenix Rebekah Lodge, this city, was represented by twenty-six members, the largest representation present from any lodge in the district. The next session of the school will be held at South Charleston, with the Little Miami Lodge as host, the date to be announced later.

SCHOOL CLOSED AS DISEASE APPEARS

The Spring Valley Twp. Consolidated Grade School was closed Tuesday morning after five pupils in the school had contracted scarlet fever. The condition is not alarming, according to county health authorities. The closing of the school was due to action of school officials and not the health authorities, as Dr. R. H. Grube, Greene County health commissioner, did not believe the condition serious enough for such action.

Three families in the township are quarantined, there being more than one child ill in two of the families. All cases are of a mild nature. Dr. Grube is of the opinion that the epidemic will soon be over.

PROFESSOR SPEAKS FOLLOWING SCHOOL PERIOD WEDNESDAY

MISS LA CROIX

Prof. C. E. Ashcraft, of Bonebrake Seminary, Dayton and teacher of the subject, "Sunday School Administration" at the Standard Training School for church school leaders of Xenia in session this week at the First Presbyterian Church, gave a talk during the devotional period at the school Wednesday evening. Mrs. George Street led in prayer.

Several new pupils were enrolled in the school Wednesday evening and a number of visitors were present. A delegation was present from Osborn looking over the school with the idea of holding a similar school in that village soon.

Miss Dorothy LaCroix, teacher of "Primary Methods" will be the speaker at the devotional period Thursday evening from 8 until 8:20 o'clock and visitors are welcome to attend this service. The final session of the school will be held Friday evening and credits will be presented pupils of the school at a union service of Xenia churches Sunday evening at the First M. E. Church with Dr. W. R. McChesney, Cedarville, preaching.

WOMAN ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP UNDER NEW LAW

The distinction of being the first woman to become naturalized under a new provision of the law pertaining to women who lose citizenship through marriage and fail to acquire citizenship in any other country, belongs to Mrs. Nettchen Davidson, Manchini, 118 S. Detroit St., who became an American citizen through naturalization for the second time Wednesday.

The declaration that he had admitted only one other woman, a resident of West Virginia, to citizenship under the recent law was made by Edward Kennedy, examiner from the naturalization bureau at Cincinnati, who made a special trip here to question Mrs. Mancini.

Born in Dusseldorf, Germany, Mrs. Mancini first became naturalized by reason of her marriage to an American citizen when she became the wife of William Davidson, this city. Following her husband's death she married M. N. Mancini, a native of Italy, but also a naturalized American citizen. More than ten years ago, however, both lost their citizenship when they returned to Italy to live. Under the new law she was not required to file a declaration of intention or certificate of arrival.

Mr. Mancini died in 1922 and Mrs. Mancini returned to Xenia in 1929 to make her home. She plans to move to California to reside soon.

HEAVY DEATH AND DAMAGE TOLL TAKEN BY OKLAHOMA TORNADO

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 20.—A heavy toll of life and property was taken by a series of tornadoes which yesterday and last night singled out small communities in Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas.

Latest reports showed twenty persons killed and approximately 130 injured. Combined property damage amounted to approximately $1,000,000.

At Bethany, Okla., a suburb of Oklahoma City, eighteen persons lost their lives and 100 were injured when a cyclonic twister of two minute duration wiped out the eastern half of the little town.

Four of the dead were pupils of the Camel Creek School which was lifted by the twister and crashed to the ground a mass of wreckage.

Jumping into Arkansas the tornado dropped down on the village of Ola causing the deaths of D. D. Powell and his wife who were crushed by falling timbers when their house collapsed, and injuring fifteen others.

A path three-fourths of a mile long was cut by the storm at Ola, the west half of the town including the business district being almost completely wiped out.

Retracing its tracks to the west the tornado flicked the village of Neal, Kas., injuring three persons, then lifted only to strike Hays, Kas., where twelve persons were injured.

JUDGMENT DENIED IN APPEALS COURT IN MONEY ACTION

O. H. Creamer, resident of New Jasper Twp., is not entitled to recover a judgment for $1,274.75 from the Silvercreek Twp. and Greene County boards of education for money spent during the last four years to transport his crippled son, Russell, by automobile to Jamestown High School, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Thursday in a decision affirming the trial court.

The father based his suit partly on the contention he lived more than four miles from Jamestown High School, the nearest school, and that there is no school in the township in which he resides.

He claimed that in a conference with the silvercreek Twp. school board prior to entering his son in the Jamestown school in 1925 and prior to each succeeding year thereafter, the township board agreed to pay for transporting Russell to the school in question at the rate of $1.25 a day.

After allegedly agreeing to compensate the father for the expense he incurred in taking the child to school, the board afterward refused to pay Creamer for such expense it was claimed. The crippled boy was unable to walk or go in any other way than by auto to school, it was also contended.

The appellate court held the father failed to clearly show the existence of a valid legal agreement with the board to pay for the transportation and that the board was within its rights in rejecting the claim. Furnishing of transportation is discretionary with local township boards, the appeals court ruled.

The higher court also held that the question of whether the boy was so crippled as to be unable to attend school except by auto is a matter which requires a certificate of the district health commissioner to make it mandatory upon the local board to provide conveyance and that the father did not claim in his petition that such pre-requisite was obtained.

DEMONSTRATION IS REPEATED

The second demonstration "Feeding the Sick and Convalescent" was given by Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent at Ross Twp. school Wednesday afternoon Forty-four women were present, from five different townships. The meeting proved most interesting because of the number of suggestions made and questions asked at the close. Miss Radford emphasized especially following the physician's directions in regard to feeding certain patients.

One more meeting is to be held at Bath Twp. school Friday, November 21 at 1:30 p. m. Each interested woman in the county is invited.

Leave a few peach stones in when you can peaches. It will improve the flavor of the canned fruit.

ATTEND MEETING OF HEALTH OFFICERS

Three representatives from Xenia and Greene County have been in attendance this week at the meeting of health commissioners of Ohio, held in Columbus. Dr. R. H. Grube, health commissioner of Greene County, was in attendance at the session Tuesday and Wednesday. Dr. A. D. DeHaven, health commissioner of Xenia city, went to Columbus Wednesday morning and will remain until Friday evening.

Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, Greene County health nurse, is also in Columbus attending a meeting of county health nurses, in connection with the meeting of health commissioners. Mrs. Wittenmyer will return home Friday evening.

MASON HONORED AT FRATERNITY MEET

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Frank E. Mason, of New York, president of International News Service, and Franklin Reck, of Detroit, assistant managing editor of the American Boy magazine, are the new heads of the Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

Mr. Mason was elected honorary national president of the fraternity and Reck was chosen active president of the group at the sixteenth annual convention of the society which closed late yesterday at Ohio State University.

HIGHWAY FUND IS REPORTED SPENT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—While more than 3,000 employes of the state highway department's maintenance division throughout Ohio are on what is termed "a temporary vacation," officials of the department here today were endeavoring to complete a financial checkup for the purpose of determining whether the department's maintenance fund has been overspent.

The check-up of obligations against the fund will probably be completed today for Friday. A two day session of the chief engineers of the twelve highway divisions of the state starts this afternoon.

The employes in the maintenance division were "laid off" Monday. Officials at the highway department today frowned upon a report that the maintenance fund has been overspent to the extent of $1,000,000.

VOLCANO ERUPTS

HONOLLU, T. H., Nov. 20.—Ten fiery fountains were spouting from the crater of Kilauea volcano on the island of Hawaii today as it continued to erupt after being dormant since July, 1929. The columns are from seventy-five to 150 feet high.

The eruption of the volcano followed a sharp temblor.

COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE THURSDAY

Miss Eva Longstreth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Longstreth, Fairfield, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard Kollofrath, Osborn, Thursday at noon at the First Lutheran Church, this city. The single ring service was read by the Rev. Harvey Crowell, pastor of the Lutheran Church, Osborn, assisted by the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold.

Witnesses at the ceremony were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Longstreth, Mrs. Alice Donall and Miss Louise Vance, all of Osborn. Following the ceremony dinner was enjoyed at the Frances Inn, S. Detroit St.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Kollofrath left for a short wedding trip. They expect to visit in Wilmington and Marion, O. Upon their return to Fairfield they will reside with the bride's parents. Mr. Kollofrath is employed as a telegraph operator for the Big Four Railroad in Osborn.

D. T. C. C. TO GIVE HOLIDAY PARTY.

Plans for a dinner-dance to be given during the Christmas holidays for members of the Downtown Country Club and their guests were made at a meeting of the club at Trebein Tavern, Dayton Pike, Wednesday evening. Preceding the club meeting members enjoyed a turkey dinner.

The Messrs. Howell Huston, John Wood and Harold Parrett were appointed on the committee to make arrangements for the holiday party. Besides the dinner and dance there will be cards for those who do not care to dance. The date and place of the party will be announced later.

DISPLAYS CHINESE ARTICLES HERE

Mr. Dickson F. Steinbeck, student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, whose home is in China and whose parents are missionaries there, will display an Oriental collection at the home of Mrs. Howard Little, 810 N. King St., Friday afternoon and evening.

The display consists of Chinese jewelry, embroideries, linens, rugs and other articles, personally selected by Mr. Steinbeck. Any one interested is cordially invited to view the display. It will prove particularly interesting to members of the Junior Woman's Club, as "China" is the subject being studied by the club this year.

---

Mrs. Dennis Phelan, Cincinnati, is the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sayre, N. King St.

LOCAL ELKS ATTEND SPRINGFIELD INITIATION

A number of Xenians, members of the local Elks Lodge, attended an initiation and banquet at the Elks' Lodge in Springfield Wednesday evening. Initiation was was put on by the national champion degree team from Wilmington. Following this ceremony a turkey banquet was served the guests.

One hundred and seventy-five Elks were present from Dayton, Washington C. H., Wilmington, Middletown, Hamilton and other cities. Local Elks attending were the Messrs. I. Friedman, John Fuerle, Robert McIntire, James Savage, William Baxley, Kenneth Elliott and Earl Confer.

---

Miss Josephine Wolf, N. King St., left Tuesday for Pasadena, Calif., where she expects to spend the winter with friends. Enroute to California she will spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wagner, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Rusell Greiner, Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Wolf, Denver, Colo.

---

Mrs. C. W. Jones, Anderson, Ind., arrived here Thursday to be the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Babb, N. Galloway St. Dr. Jones will join her here Saturday for the week end.

---

Mr. Ray Cox, who underwent a serious operation at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, several weeks ago, will be removed to his home on N. Galloway St., Friday. He is recovering nicely.

---

Mr. Robert McConnell returned to his home in Rising Sun, Ind., Thursday after spending a week here with Dr. and Mrs. Paul D. Espey, N. Detroit St. Mrs. Espey and Mr. McConnell are cousins.

---

Mr. John G. Eavey, Pleasant St., is recovering nicely from his recent operation for appendicitis, although he is still confined at McClellan Hospital.

XENIA HONORED BY REBEKAH DISTRICT

Mrs. Fred Snyder, 650 S. Detroit St., was elevated president of the fifty-third district of Rebekah Lodges of Ohio at a special school of instruction of Rebekah Lodges of this district at South Vienna, Wednesday. Mrs. H. W. Cleaver, E. Third St., was elected warden for this district.

Wednesday's meeting was an all day affair and Mrs. Jennie Herman, president of the Ohio Rebekah Assembly, presided. Phoenix Rebekah Lodge, this city, was represented by twenty-six members, the largest representation present from any lodge in the district. The next session of the school will be held at South Charleston, with the Little Miami Lodge as host, the date to be announced later.

SCHOOL CLOSED AS DISEASE APPEARS

The Spring Valley Twp. Consolidated Grade School was closed Tuesday morning after five pupils in the school had contracted scarlet fever. The condition is not alarming, according to county health authorities. The closing of the school was due to action of school officials and not the health authorities, as Dr. R. H. Grube, Greene County health commissioner, did not believe the condition serious enough for such action.

Three families in the township are quarantined, there being more than one child ill in two of the families. All cases are of a mild nature. Dr. Grube is of the opinion that the epidemic will soon be over.

PROFESSOR SPEAKS FOLLOWING SCHOOL PERIOD WEDNESDAY

MISS LA CROIX

Prof. C. E. Ashcraft, of Bonebrake Seminary, Dayton and teacher of the subject, "Sunday School Administration" at the Standard Training School for church school leaders of Xenia in session this week at the First Presbyterian Church, gave a talk during the devotional period at the school Wednesday evening. Mrs. George Street led in prayer.

Several new pupils were enrolled in the school Wednesday evening and a number of visitors were present. A delegation was present from Osborn looking over the school with the idea of holding a similar school in that village soon.

Miss Dorothy LaCroix, teacher of "Primary Methods" will be the speaker at the devotional period Thursday evening from 8 until 8:20 o'clock and visitors are welcome to attend this service. The final session of the school will be held Friday evening and credits will be presented pupils of the school at a union service of Xenia churches Sunday evening at the First M. E. Church with Dr. W. R. McChesney, Cedarville, preaching.

WOMAN ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP UNDER NEW LAW

The distinction of being the first woman to become naturalized under a new provision of the law pertaining to women who lose citizenship through marriage and fail to acquire citizenship in any other country, belongs to Mrs. Nettchen Davidson, Manchini, 118 S. Detroit St., who became an American citizen through naturalization for the second time Wednesday.

The declaration that he had admitted only one other woman, a resident of West Virginia, to citizenship under the recent law was made by Edward Kennedy, examiner from the naturalization bureau at Cincinnati, who made a special trip here to question Mrs. Mancini.

Born in Dusseldorf, Germany, Mrs. Mancini first became naturalized by reason of her marriage to an American citizen when she became the wife of William Davidson, this city. Following her husband's death she married M. N. Mancini, a native of Italy, but also a naturalized American citizen. More than ten years ago, however, both lost their citizenship when they returned to Italy to live. Under the new law she was not required to file a declaration of intention or certificate of arrival.

Mr. Mancini died in 1922 and Mrs. Mancini returned to Xenia in 1929 to make her home. She plans to move to California to reside soon.

HEAVY DEATH AND DAMAGE TOLL TAKEN BY OKLAHOMA TORNADO

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 20.—A heavy toll of life and property was taken by a series of tornadoes which yesterday and last night singled out small communities in Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas.

Latest reports showed twenty persons killed and approximately 130 injured. Combined property damage amounted to approximately $1,000,000.

At Bethany, Okla., a suburb of Oklahoma City, eighteen persons lost their lives and 100 were injured when a cyclonic twister of two minute duration wiped out the eastern half of the little town.

Four of the dead were pupils of the Camel Creek School which was lifted by the twister and crashed to the ground a mass of wreckage.

Jumping into Arkansas the tornado dropped down on the village of Ola causing the deaths of D. D. Powell and his wife who were crushed by falling timbers when their house collapsed, and injuring fifteen others.

A path three-fourths of a mile long was cut by the storm at Ola, the west half of the town including the business district being almost completely wiped out.

Retracing its tracks to the west the tornado flicked the village of Neal, Kas., injuring three persons, then lifted only to strike Hays, Kas., where twelve persons were injured.

JUDGMENT DENIED IN APPEALS COURT IN MONEY ACTION

O. H. Creamer, resident of New Jasper Twp., is not entitled to recover a judgment for $1,274.75 from the Silvercreek Twp. and Greene County boards of education for money spent during the last four years to transport his crippled son, Russell, by automobile to Jamestown High School, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Thursday in a decision affirming the trial court.

The father based his suit partly on the contention he lived more than four miles from Jamestown High School, the nearest school, and that there is no school in the township in which he resides.

He claimed that in a conference with the silvercreek Twp. school board prior to entering his son in the Jamestown school in 1925 and prior to each succeeding year thereafter, the township board agreed to pay for transporting Russell to the school in question at the rate of $1.25 a day.

After allegedly agreeing to compensate the father for the expense he incurred in taking the child to school, the board afterward refused to pay Creamer for such expense it was claimed. The crippled boy was unable to walk or go in any other way than by auto to school, it was also contended.

The appellate court held the father failed to clearly show the existence of a valid legal agreement with the board to pay for the transportation and that the board was within its rights in rejecting the claim. Furnishing of transportation is discretionary with local township boards, the appeals court ruled.

The higher court also held that the question of whether the boy was so crippled as to be unable to attend school except by auto is a matter which requires a certificate of the district health commissioner to make it mandatory upon the local board to provide conveyance and that the father did not claim in his petition that such pre-requisite was obtained.

DEMONSTRATION IS REPEATED

The second demonstration "Feeding the Sick and Convalescent" was given by Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent at Ross Twp. school Wednesday afternoon Forty-four women were present, from five different townships. The meeting proved most interesting because of the number of suggestions made and questions asked at the close. Miss Radford emphasized especially following the physician's directions in regard to feeding certain patients.

One more meeting is to be held at Bath Twp. school Friday, November 21 at 1:30 p. m. Each interested woman in the county is invited.

Leave a few peach stones in when you can peaches. It will improve the flavor of the canned fruit.

ATTEND MEETING OF HEALTH OFFICERS

Three representatives from Xenia and Greene County have been in attendance this week at the meeting of health commissioners of Ohio, held in Columbus. Dr. R. H. Grube, health commissioner of Greene County, was in attendance at the session Tuesday and Wednesday. Dr. A. D. DeHaven, health commissioner of Xenia city, went to Columbus Wednesday morning and will remain until Friday evening.

Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, Greene County health nurse, is also in Columbus attending a meeting of county health nurses, in connection with the meeting of health commissioners. Mrs. Wittenmyer will return home Friday evening.

MASON HONORED AT FRATERNITY MEET

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Frank E. Mason, of New York, president of International News Service, and Franklin Reck, of Detroit, assistant managing editor of the American Boy magazine, are the new heads of the Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

Mr. Mason was elected honorary national president of the fraternity and Reck was chosen active president of the group at the sixteenth annual convention of the society which closed late yesterday at Ohio State University.

HIGHWAY FUND IS REPORTED SPENT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—While more than 3,000 employes of the state highway department's maintenance division throughout Ohio are on what is termed "a temporary vacation," officials of the department here today were endeavoring to complete a financial checkup for the purpose of determining whether the department's maintenance fund has been overspent.

The check-up of obligations against the fund will probably be completed today for Friday. A two day session of the chief engineers of the twelve highway divisions of the state starts this afternoon.

The employes in the maintenance division were "laid off" Monday. Officials at the highway department today frowned upon a report that the maintenance fund has been overspent to the extent of $1,000,000.

VOLCANO ERUPTS

HONOLLU, T. H., Nov. 20.—Ten fiery fountains were spouting from the crater of Kilauea volcano on the island of Hawaii today as it continued to erupt after being dormant since July, 1929. The columns are from seventy-five to 150 feet high.

The eruption of the volcano followed a sharp temblor.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Then said he unto the disciples, It is impossible but that offenses will come; but woe unto him, through whom they come!

It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones.—St. Luke, xvii. 1, 2.

INTEREST IN CITIZENSHIP

Returns from the recent election indicate a very large falling off in the total vote. The interest that was taken in the presidential election of 1928 has fallen off. Many voters who cared enough for that result to get out to the polls, have not cared enough this time to elect congressmen and state officers.

Here is a deplorable lack of interest in public affairs. What can be done about it?

It would seem as if people should be trained from early youth to become interested in this public business. It is remarked that it is hardly possible to have political questions studied in schools, since people might complain that teachers gave one sided views of politics.

It would seem a practical idea, and one that should cost little or nothing, if previous to each election, the school authorities of every community would invite the two leading political parties of their city or town to send representatives into the schools to explain the principles of their respective parties. Each side could be given an equal amount of time, so there would be no unfairness.

Then after they heard these speeches, the children might well be allowed to vote for their choice of parties or candidates. Probably they would usually vote the way their parents do. But their attention would be called to political questions, and they would see at an early age that these questions are going to affect their daily lives.

It would seem probable that if this plan was carried out, most of these boys and girls would register and vote as soon as they become of age. They would read political news, and become more intelligent on this subject. The political organizations should welcome such a plan, as it would give them a chance to enlist new voters.

INTELLIGENT LOYALTY

It is a fine thing for people to be loyal to their home town, but some intelligence and attention has to be added to that loyalty. To push a town ahead, calls not merely for energy and effort, but people have to display some judgment as to the ends toward which that energy should be devoted.

This principle calls for thoughtful attention to local problems. People should study their municipal government, and examine the way in which the money can be most effectively spent. They should study their schools, and back up everything good they do, and see if they could be improved. They should make themselves familiar with community progress in other cities, to make sure that their home town keeps up with the game.

We have a feeling that the more the Democrats in New York talk about what a great and good man they have at the head of their state government, and about what a fine president he would make, the more difficulties Mr. Roosevelt will run up against when he faces the next party national convention as a candidate.

A little of that spirit of amity and mutual concession displayed by leading Democrats and Republicans would make leading prohibitionists and modernists equally appear to better advantage.

Perhaps Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick can find consolation in a knowledge that she will have the courtesy of the house rather than the discourtesy of the senate after March 4.

Would it be inaccurate to say that the drys and wets have placed the country between the devil and the deep sea?

YOU MUST ANSWER THE DOORBELL!

Even if you're busy you must answer the doorbell.

It may be nobody you care to see, but you must answer it just the same. It may be the brush man, or a magazine solicitor. It may be an old fellow selling dried apricots or another old man wondering if you'll let him cut the grass. Or a bill collector. Or a policeman. Or a neighbor. Or a friend you haven't seen for years. It may be joy . . . embarrassment . . . an opportunity . . . any of these things. You must meet it!

When the doorbell rings you must go to open the door—to shut it again as soon as possible or to swing it wide and welcome the one who rang the bell.

* * *

Some people can go right on with whatever they're doing when the front doorbell rings—or disconnect the bell so it doesn't ring at all. Or they can refuse to answer the telephone. They can let it ring and ring and ring and they do nothing about it. How wonderful to have such a strong will! How odd to have such little curiosity! . . . We don't do that! We answer the doorbell, we rush to the telephone. A bore may be at the door, the call may be just a wrong number, not for us. But we MUST answer it. We're ordinary folks and we can't help it.

* * *

We must answer doorbells, we must answer Life. We cannot sit in a little room and wait for Life to break the door down, We can not hide away . . . or dream . . . or sulk . . . or suffer. We must open the door and meet Life. If we do not open the door, we may never know what we've missed, but we'll regret it all our life. Some day we'll say to ourselves, "I should have gone to the door. I should have opened it to Life. What a fool I was that day, when I didn't take a chance, when I thought other things were more important. I'll never do THAT again, I'll never be so foolish!"

You rage at life because so much of it is trivial and impudent, and time-wasting and unimportant, but you must meet it when it calls . . . because you never can know . . . you never can tell . . . and you may be sorry if you don't . . . and you may say to yourself, too late, "I should have lived, and I didn't!"

We live by opening doors to Life.

THE QUESTION BOX

— Central Press Wash Bureau —

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Can the president be prosecuted as a citizen would be for wrong doing under the state and federal laws?

While the president is in office he is privileged from the jurisdiction of any court or magistrate. He must be impeached by the house of representatives and tried by the senate, and if found guilty removed from office. He then can be tried for wrong doing on the same basis as a private citizen.

George Washington

Was it the First or Second Continental Congress that appointed George Washington commander-in-chief of the army, and how old was Washington at the time?

On June 15, 1775, George Washington was chosen by the Second Continental Congress as commander-in-chief of the army. He was 43 at the time.

Novelist

What American novelist, after reading an English book, said he could write a better story himself? And what was the book he wrote?

James Fenimore Cooper, an American novelist, after reading an English novel, said to his wife, "I believe I could write a better story myself," and proceeded to try it. But his novel, "Precaution," which he wrote in 1820, was a failure because it dealt with high life in England, about which Cooper knew nothing. When he began to write books dealing with frontier life and the Indians, about which he knew a great deal, he became successful. His highest achievement was "The Last of the Mohicans," which he wrote in 1826.

The Admirable Crichton

Who was "The Admirable Crichton"? When did he live and in what manner was he killed?

James Crichton (1560-82) was called "The Admirable Crichton." He was a Scotchman famous for his versatility and his universal accomplishments. Before he reached his twentieth year he had, it seems, "run through the whole cycle of the sciences," mastered 10 different languages, and perfected himself in every knightly accomplishment. Because of the elegance of his appearance and manners he was a great favorite in Paris, Rome, Venice and Mantua. In 1582 he was appointed tutor to Vincenzo di Ganzaga, the son of the Duke of Mantua. According to accounts, on July 3, 1582, Crichton was attacked in the streets of Mantua by six masked men. In the scuffle the leader pulled off his mask and Crichton discovered that it was none other than his pupil, Vincenzo. The Admirable Crichton threw himself upon his knees and begged the young prince's pardon, at the same time presenting him with his sword, which the heartless youth plunged into the body of his tutor.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Brother Hitz says: "Since human forgettulness hasn't changed much, it is fair to assume that the number of cases of money found in Bibles is an indication of the use of Bibles for the purpose."

I suppose he means, for the purpose of hiding money.

Personally I think Mr. Hitz's premise is all wet and his conclusion has a varicose vein. A man might place a dollar bill in the leaves of the Bible to hold the place when he gets up to answer the phone, or again he may slip a bean into Deuteronomy to reward some religiously inclined chambermaid who stops making the bed to dip into Holy Writ for a bit of inspiration or courage.

It's a subject, as you can see, that merits much thought.

ROCK BOTTOM

Walking across Wall Street the other day with a broker friend I touched on the "apple situation."

He had devoted to it much thought, it seems. He said that as he viewed the apple market it offered "choice bargains for shrewd investors." He said he thought "prices had reached a whole new plateau of values."

I said to him: "You would really then, advise my buying apples?"

"Assuredly," he replied. "Their attractive yield constitutes what I should term a sound investment."

When I spoke to him of the downward trend in prices he said that was merely "wholesome liquidation."

Then he pointed to an apple seller's stand nearby that bore a sign "Four for Ten," and said "the bottom has at last been reached" and that "the stabilized structure could now move forward."

A PROBLEM FOR EUCLID

I have christened my taxi driver The Demon.

I call him mine. In reality I am his. I started out by adopting him as a means of solving my taxi troubles. He has been driving me for a year now, and our relationship has changed slightly. He has adopted ME. Taken personal charge.

On several occasions he has hinted with that elephantine finesse of his that "if dey's anybody you want given de woiks, jes' lemme know who he is. Right?"

The Demon, I fear, is a little disappointed in me. Because I have refrained from nominating a candidate for "de woiks" he thinks I doubt his ability as a strong-arm man.

What The Demon lacks in grace and gentleness of mind he more than atones for in virility of character.

Circumlocution and dissimulation are foreign to him. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

THE FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

My broker friend is one of those omniscient engineers in charge of the dials and switches of the credit system of The Street, who turned out to be a mere word juggler.

Stuart Chase has described the breed:

"Their hands," he says, "were not on the levers and steering wheels, but on dictionaries. The ferocious processes of supply and demand have proved that they did not know any more about the financial structure than we did."

FEDERAL REGULATION OF POWER INDUSTRY SEEN AS URGENT NOW

— CHARLES P. STEWART —

WASHINGTON.—Said Chief Justice Hughes, addressing a recent meeting of legal specialists on transportation questions:

"If an agency like the interstate commerce commission had been established much earlier, with adequate authority, we would have been spared many of the most difficult of our present problems."

Whereat Solicitor Charles A. Russell, of the federal power commission, a guest at the gathering, led all hands in applause.

Himself formerly of the interstate commerce commission's legal staff, Solicitor Russell says the power industry today is just where the railroads were when an agency to regulate them ought to have been established—but was not, until it was well-nigh too late.

There is, indeed, a federal power commission but its authority is small and its members (Secretaries of War, the Interior and Agriculture Hurley, Wilbur and Hyde) are too busy with other duties to know more concerning its work than underlings choose to tell them, according to Solicitor Russell, who adds that this enables the power interests to shape power policies mainly to suit themselves.

Obviously, argues Solicitor Russell, an independent, full-time power board similar to the interstate commerce commission, is needed. For that matter, it is in prospect. Russell drafted the bill and Senator Couzens of Michigan is pushing it in congress, which probably will pass it next winter.

But will the new power commission, it and when created by congress and appointed by the president, possess the "adequate authority" specified by Chief Justice Hughes?

A federal commission can regulate only interstate industries.

Most railroads are interstate, but how about power? Though some of it is transmitted across state lines, the bulk of it is consumed not far from where it is generated.

Solicitor Russell reasons thus:

In numerous cases a single big corporation exercises control, in one way or another, over a multiplicity of power-producing concerns scattered throughout many states. Such power really is sold, between states, by the central company to the consumers, with the small local outfits as mere agents.

If Russell can make this contention stick, he will have vested his prospective commission with a lot of authority—but of course the power folk will fight it tooth and toenail.

As Solicitor Russell relates railroad history (into which he delved deeply during his connection with the interstate commerce commission) it is clear enough why Chief Justice Hughes regrets that such an agency, "with adequate authority," was not "established much earlier."

The railroads quite largely were already built when the commission was created, which was in 1887, but it was several years later than that before it was given "adequate authority" to do much regulating.

Regulation consisted principally in fixing fair rates; to determine what rates were fair, it was necessary to ascertain what the roads were making on their investments; to learn what they were making, it was essential to discover the aggregate of their investments—and to this day the commission never has discovered it.

At the outset, the roads undoubtedly fixed their books to indicate construction costs far greater than they were in reality, enabling them to begin by demanding dividends upon countless imaginary millions.

Next they borrowed heavily, presently shuffling their borrowings into the investment total and demanding dividends upon the new, higher basis.

Then followed the consolidation period, signalized by the stiff marking up of the book value of each road included in each merger—with, of course, demands for increased dividends in proportion.

To further complicate the reckoning, there have been at least two major fluctuations (a third appears to be just now beginning) in prices. A certain number of dollars in January, 1914, for instance, meaning something altogether different in purchasing power from the same number of dollars in January, 1930.

Had the interstate commerce commission begun its career when all this hocus-pocus was in its infancy and grown up along with it, perhaps it could have kept up with the figures.

Trying to break into the midst of it!—well, it was hopeless.

Solicitor Russell sees power now as an infant industry—compared with what he expects to see it a few years hence. He wants the prospective power commission put on the job in plenty of season to sit right alongside the cradle and agree with the child on some preliminary bookkeeping.

Peter's Adventures

— By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent —

TROUBLE IN THE TUNNEL

"Oh, oh, oh!" moaned the stranger in the tunnel. "You told the truth, and I thought you were only boasting. That spear is sharp, and I have wounded myself in the side of my head. Lucky for me I didn't strike my eyes on the point. What a terrible weapon!"

"I told you so!" Peter turned the point of his spear roofward, but held it firmly to use again should there be further need of self-protection. "I am sorry you hurt yourself, stranger, but you should learn not to jump at conclusions. I am a human, but I am—"

Before Peter could finish his explanation, Busy, who heard the commotion and the cry, hurried to the boy's side.

"What in the world is the matter?" demanded she. "Good gracious, haven't we trouble enough already without you two starting more in this dark tunnel? This is one of my trusted scouts, Boy. Doubtless she would not have attacked you if she had been less tired. But she is all worked up and nervous over her job—she has been hard at it for the last hour digging a clear passage through the tunnel! Naturally, when you appeared so unexpectedly, Boy, the poor scout took you for someone you weren't. And Digger, this Two-Legs is one of the best friends the Black Ants have. He is taking the short cut through the tunnel to the back of the hill so that he can watch the enemy's movements and report to me every little while. Maybe, with the boy's help, we shall yet save our nurses and babies. And who knows, perhaps many of the soldiers will make a retreat through the tunnel.

"My error, boy!" cried Digger. "Here, let me escort you through the passage. The sooner you're out of here the better for all concerned!"

Next: "Peter Gets the High Sign."

Pumpkin Pie with Whipped Cream
Tea

This menu will serve four. It is intended for a luncheon, but there is no reason why it would not serve for dinner or supper.

Today's Recipes

Ham-Potatoes-Vegetables, en Casserole—Place in a casserole in order given, seasoning to taste: Two tablespoons rice, three carrots, sliced fine; one small tomato, five or six potatoes, sliced. Place ham cut in strips on top. Pork chops may be used instead of ham. Fill casserole half full with warm water. Cover, place in the oven for one hour. Remove the cover the last half hour if you wish the meat browned.

Suggestions

Maple Syrup Doughnuts

Beat one egg, add one cup maple syrup, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup sour milk added alternately with two cups flour to which has been added one-half teaspoon soda and two teaspoons baking powder and sifted. Then add nutmeg or vanilla and enough more flour to make a soft dough. This recipe makes two dozen doughnuts.

Non-Rust Hint

If the inside of the lid of a new jar of prepared mustard is covered with melted paraffin it will not rust. Treat the lids of sandwich filler and peanut butter jars the same way.

Water In Wet Pack Nerve Cure

— By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. —

Pindar said, "The best thing is water, the next is gold."

The use of water in the form of the wet pack is valuable for nervous invalids and those troubled with insomnia. It is also used with good effect in many acute contagious diseases, such as pneumonia, scarlet fever and influenza.

To apply it successfully is not difficult.

The patient should be on a single bed. Over the mattress is spread a rubber sheet. Two large woolen blankets, which reach a foot or more beyond the patient's extremities at the end and to the floor on the sides, are laid over this.

A linen sheet wrung out of water at the temperature of 60 or 70 degrees Fahrenheit (the temperature depending on the severity of the case, and the patient's strength) is placed on the blankets.

The patient is laid on this sheet. The patient's arms are raised over his head. One side of the sheet is brought over the body and pressed down between the legs. The arms are then lowered and the other side of the sheet is brought over the body and the arms and tucked in snugly at the neck. The blankets are brought over the body and tucked in all around. The patient must be wrapped in the blankets airtight.

The age long prejudice against wet sheets must be overcome before treatment by the wet pack can be carried out. The first reaction after getting in the pack is a disagreeable shivering feeling. The application of cold to the skin, however, soon brings a reaction and the blood vessels of the skin dilate, warming up the moisture in the sheet. Soon a pleasant tonic feeling of languor supervenes.

During the early period of the pack, before the sheet gets warm, there is a continuous interchange, between the cool blood at the surface and the warm blood of the interior of the body. This amounts to a massage of the circulatory system and is the secret of the value of the wet pack.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. R.: "My query is one regarding marriage. Is it considered all right for second cousins to marry? I consider my mother's aunt's children as my second cousins. Is this correct? Also answer the first question."

Answer. Second cousins and even first cousins marry happily and produce healthy children, so long as the heredity is good. Family diseases, especially mental diseases, tend to be accentuated in the children of such a match. Second cousins are usually considered to be the children in the same generation of first cousins.

What Is This Freedom?

— By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE —

What is this freedom we hear so much about and that everyone yearns for?

Well, from my experience it's one of those things that you think you want more than anything else in the world; but if you get it you find you don't like it at all.

For instance, most of us are tied down every minute with duties galore—work, social engagements, etc. We think if we could have a little free time how happy we would be. We want to read, to write, to "commune with nature and our own souls," we say.

But what happens if we have a little time when there are no pressing duties? Do we do the things we thought we wanted to do? Not at all. We are bored. Books, music, our own thoughts, all the things we thought we wanted, fail to appeal to us. And the most miserable people on earth are those who have nothing to do and no one dependent on them for support or happiness.

"DEAR VIRGINIA: What can I do? Mother won't let me go out with fellows. She tells me I can have one up to the house, and when I tell her I want to ask a fellow up she says no. I'm a sophomore in high school, and a girl nowadays isn't popular unless she's allowed to go out with boys and have a good time.

"My girl friend is allowed to and has more respect for her mother than formerly. I hate to admit it, but I have very little respect for my mother because she nags at me continually. Don't tell me to stay at home until I'm older, because I can't.

"DISCOURAGED."

It's a bit hard to be kept from going out with the boys and girls, and having a good time, I know. I sympathize with you there; but mothers have to be particular, you know. You youngsters don't usually know when to stop going, and consequently your health is harmed. It seems like nagging to you when mother tells you what she thinks, but just wait awhile. When you have more of this freedom that you think you want, you'll probably look back and wish you were home again, and see that "mother was right."

Old stuff, isn't it? But true, nevertheless. If I am not to tell you to be contented to stay at home, and mother won't let you have boy friends, what's the answer? Mine usually is that if you can't do what you want to, do the next best thing, make the best of a situation and get as much fun as possible out of it.

PATSY: Hard as it is when a girl loves the boy friend, I think it is wiser not to phone him and try to make up once she has made it plain that she wants to. If he has gotten over caring for her he is apt to only be annoyed if she tries various ways of getting him back.

Better suffer while you must, and put him bravely out of your life. You won't feel so badly after awhile. Work hard and try to have fun in all the little happenings of every day.

BROWN EYES: Forget about being "backward," and show that you are friendly by speaking pleasantly to the boy and to other schoolmates. As to the other girl, treat her as you would want to be treated if you were in her place.

WORRIED B.: Generally speaking I should say a girl of 17 might be allowed to stay up until 11 or 12 one night a week, provided she doesn't have to go to school next day.

Some good, sensible girls can take care of themselves at a dance, others can't. Best have someone there to whom you can go if anything embarrassing comes up. I should think it better that you and the boy whose religion differs so much from yours should not go together steadily, but there is no reason why two of different nationalities should not be good friends if they are congenial otherwise.

Right Shade Rouge Easy to Choose

— By GLADYS GLAD —

Women of the stage and screen appreciate more keenly the value and importance of harmony than do most women. They study themselves carefully, in order to achieve harmony in the lines of their figures, harmony in their movements, and particularly harmony in their make-up.

I have, in prior articles, repeatedly stressed the fact that cosmetics should blend harmoniously with the natural coloring of the face. And women usually have a fair degree of success in choosing their powder shades and eyeshadow shades.

But they often encounter difficulties when selecting the harmonious shade of rouge for their cheeks. They know that the rouge should match the natural coloring in their cheeks. But the woman who can't remember having seen any tint in her cheeks since she was knee-high to a grasshopper, feels that she has nothing to guide her in selecting her rouge. She indignantly snorts that she cannot be expected to match a cheek coloring that she does not possess!

Nevertheless, there is a very simple method of choosing cheek rouge, and one that will assure you the correct shade for your natural coloring. A famous beauty specialist told me about it. I was present when she asked a dozen of her newest customers to select their rouge by this method, and only two of them chose the shade that the specialist considered an imperfect match.

Cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing method. Then pat your cheeks until your color is high. Don't do it roughly. Pat lightly. The color will rise easily. Then look in the mirror. Take one of the rouge color charts that can be obtained in most beauty shops, and compare the shades with your flushed cheeks. Choose the one that most perfectly matches the color in your cheeks.

Once you have done this, you will not have to repeat it unless you change the kind of rouge you are using. If you should decide to try a different brand of rouge, you will have to match your coloring again, for most manufacturers have different names for the same shades. Also, in later years, you may find that the color of your skin has changed, and you will be obliged to use different tinting for your cheeks and lips. Then again, you may repeat the matching process.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Hands

V. L.: An excellent hand lotion can be made of one part of glycerine and three parts of rose water. Apply a protective coating of cold cream to your hands before exposing them to the elements.

Gaining Weight

Anita A. and Vivian: The method of gaining weight contained in my booklet on "The New Figure" will indeed help to develop and round out the contours of your figure. You are ten pounds underweight.

Height

A Runt and Betty Lillian: I would suggest that you go to a gymnastic school and take stretching and limbering exercises. As you are under 20 years of age, it will help to increase your stature. A long bob will not cut your height.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," if you will write her care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Then said he unto the disciples, It is impossible but that offenses will come; but woe unto him, through whom they come!

It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones.—St. Luke, xvii. 1, 2.

INTEREST IN CITIZENSHIP

Returns from the recent election indicate a very large falling off in the total vote. The interest that was taken in the presidential election of 1928 has fallen off. Many voters who cared enough for that result to get out to the polls, have not cared enough this time to elect congressmen and state officers.

Here is a deplorable lack of interest in public affairs. What can be done about it?

It would seem as if people should be trained from early youth to become interested in this public business. It is remarked that it is hardly possible to have political questions studied in schools, since people might complain that teachers gave one sided views of politics.

It would seem a practical idea, and one that should cost little or nothing, if previous to each election, the school authorities of every community would invite the two leading political parties of their city or town to send representatives into the schools to explain the principles of their respective parties. Each side could be given an equal amount of time, so there would be no unfairness.

Then after they heard these speeches, the children might well be allowed to vote for their choice of parties or candidates. Probably they would usually vote the way their parents do. But their attention would be called to political questions, and they would see at an early age that these questions are going to affect their daily lives.

It would seem probable that if this plan was carried out, most of these boys and girls would register and vote as soon as they become of age. They would read political news, and become more intelligent on this subject. The political organizations should welcome such a plan, as it would give them a chance to enlist new voters.

INTELLIGENT LOYALTY

It is a fine thing for people to be loyal to their home town, but some intelligence and attention has to be added to that loyalty. To push a town ahead, calls not merely for energy and effort, but people have to display some judgment as to the ends toward which that energy should be devoted.

This principle calls for thoughtful attention to local problems. People should study their municipal government, and examine the way in which the money can be most effectively spent. They should study their schools, and back up everything good they do, and see if they could be improved. They should make themselves familiar with community progress in other cities, to make sure that their home town keeps up with the game.

---

We have a feeling that the more the Democrats in New York talk about what a great and good man they have at the head of their state government, and about what a fine president he would make, the more difficulties Mr. Roosevelt will run up against when he faces the next party national convention as a candidate.

---

A little of that spirit of amity and mutual concession displayed by leading Democrats and Republicans would make leading prohibitionists and modernists equally appear to better advantage.

---

Perhaps Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick can find consolation in a knowledge that she will have the courtesy of the house rather than the discourtesy of the senate after March 4.

Would it be inaccurate to say that the drys and wets have placed the country between the devil and the deep sea?

YOU MUST ANSWER THE DOORBELL!

Even if you're busy you must answer the doorbell.

It may be nobody you care to see, but you must answer it just the same. It may be the brush man, or a magazine solicitor. It may be an old fellow selling dried apricots or another old man wondering if you'll let him cut the grass. Or a bill collector. Or a policeman. Or a neighbor. Or a friend you haven't seen for years. It may be joy . . . embarrassment . . . an opportunity . . . any of these things. You must meet it!

When the doorbell rings you must go to open the door—to shut it again as soon as possible or to swing it wide and welcome the one who rang the bell.

* * *

Some people can go right on with whatever they're doing when the front doorbell rings—or disconnect the bell so it doesn't ring at all. Or they can refuse to answer the telephone. They can let it ring and ring and ring and they do nothing about it. How wonderful to have such a strong will! How odd to have such little curiosity! . . . We don't do that! We answer the doorbell, we rush to the telephone. A bore may be at the door, the call may be just a wrong number, not for us. But we MUST answer it. We're ordinary folks and we can't help it.

* * *

We must answer doorbells, we must answer Life. We cannot sit in a little room and wait for Life to break the door down. We can not hide away . . . or dream . . . or sulk . . . or suffer. We must open the door and meet Life. If we do not open the door, we may never know what we've missed, but we'll regret it all our life. Some day we'll say to ourselves, "I should have gone to the door. I should have opened it to Life. What a fool I was that day, when I didn't take a chance, when I thought other things were more important. I'll never do THAT again, I'll never be so foolish!"

You rage at life because so much of it is trivial and impudent, and time-wasting and unimportant, but you must meet it when it calls . . . because you never can know . . . you never can tell . . . and you may be sorry if you don't . . . and you may say to yourself, too late, "I should have lived, and I didn't!"

We live by opening doors to Life.

THE QUESTION BOX

— Central Press Wash Bureau —

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Can the president be prosecuted as a citizen would be for wrong doing under the state and federal laws?

While the president is in office he is privileged from the jurisdiction of any court or magistrate. He must be impeached by the house of representatives and tried by the senate, and if found guilty removed from office. He then can be tried for wrong doing on the same basis as a private citizen.

George Washington

Was it the First or Second Continental Congress that appointed George Washington commander-in-chief of the army, and how old was Washington at the time?

On June 15, 1775, George Washington was chosen by the Second Continental Congress as commander-in-chief of the army. He was 43 at the time.

Novelist

What American novelist, after reading an English book, said he could write a better story himself? And what was the book he wrote?

James Fenimore Cooper, an American novelist, after reading an English novel, said to his wife, "I believe I could write a better story myself," and proceeded to try it. But his novel, "Precaution," which he wrote in 1820, was a failure because it dealt with high life in England, about which Cooper knew nothing. When he began to write books dealing with frontier life and the Indians, about which he knew a great deal, he became successful. His highest achievement was "The Last of the Mohicans," which he wrote in 1826.

The Admirable Crichton

Who was "The Admirable Crichton"? When did he live and in what manner was he killed?

James Crichton (1560-82) was called "The Admirable Crichton." He was a Scotchman famous for his versatility and his universal accomplishments. Before he reached his twentieth year he had, it seems, "run through the whole cycle of the sciences," mastered 10 different languages, and perfected himself in every knightly accomplishment. Because of the elegance of his appearance and manners he was a great favorite in Paris, Rome, Venice and Mantua. In 1582 he was appointed tutor to Vincenzo di Ganzaga, the son of the Duke of Mantua. According to accounts, on July 3, 1582, Crichton was attacked in the streets of Mantua by six masked men. In the scuffle the leader pulled off his mask and Crichton discovered that it was none other than his pupil, Vincenzo. The Admirable Crichton threw himself upon his knees and begged the young prince's pardon, at the same time presenting him with his sword, which the heartless youth plunged into the body of his tutor.

Bo-Broadway

— By JOSEPH VAN HAALTE —

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Brother Hitz says: "Since human forgetfulness hasn't changed much, it is fair to assume that the number of cases of money found in Bibles is an indication of the use of Bibles for the purpose."

I suppose he means, for the purpose of hiding money.

Personally I think Mr. Hitz's premise is all wet and his conclusion has a varicose vein. A man might place a dollar bill in the leaves of the Bible to hold the place when he gets up to answer the phone, or again he may slip a bean into Deuteronomy to reward some religiously inclined chambermaid who stops making the bed to dip into Holy Writ for a bit of inspiration or courage.

It's a subject, as you can see, that merits much thought.

ROCK BOTTOM

Walking across Wall Street the other day with a broker friend I touched on the "apple situation."

He had devoted to it much thought, it seems. He said that as he viewed the apple market it offered "choice bargains for shrewd investors." He said he thought "prices had reached a whole new plateau of values."

I said to him: "You would really then, advise my buying apples?"

"Assuredly," he replied. "Their attractive yield constitutes what I should term a sound investment."

When I spoke to him of the downward trend in prices he said that was merely "wholesome liquidation."

Then he pointed to an apple seller's stand nearby that bore a sign "Four for Ten," and said "the bottom has at last been reached" and that "the stabilized structure could now move forward."

A PROBLEM FOR EUCLID

I have christened my taxi driver The Demon.

I call him mine. In reality I am his. I started out by adopting him as a means of solving my taxi troubles. He has been driving me for a year now, and our relationship has changed slightly. He has adopted ME. Taken personal charge.

On several occasions he has hinted with that elephantine finesse of his that "if dey's anybody you want given de woiks, jes' lemme know who he is. Right?"

The Demon, I fear, is a little disappointed in me. Because I have refrained from nominating a candidate for "de woiks" he thinks I doubt his ability as a strong-arm man.

What The Demon lacks in grace and gentleness of mind he more than atones for in virility of character.

Circumlocution and dissimulation are foreign to him. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

THE FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

My broker friend is one of those omniscient engineers in charge of the dials and switches of the credit system of The Street, who turned out to be a mere word juggler.

Stuart Chase has described the breed:

"Their hands," he says, "were not on the levers and steering wheels, but on dictionaries. The ferocious processes of supply and demand have proved that they did not know any more about the financial structure than we did."

AND AN ANGEL APPEARED OUTOF A CLOUD

FEDERAL REGULATION OF POWER INDUSTRY SEEN AS URGENT NOW

— CHARLES P. STEWART —

WASHINGTON.—Said Chief Justice Hughes, addressing a recent meeting of legal specialists on transportation questions:

"If an agency like the interstate commerce commission had been established much earlier, with adequate authority, we would have been spared many of the most difficult of our present problems."

Whereat Solicitor Charles A. Russell, of the federal power commission, a guest at the gathering, led all hands in applause.

Himself formerly of the interstate commerce commission's legal staff, Solicitor Russell says the power industry today is just where the railroads were when an agency to regulate them ought to have been established—but was not, until it was well-nigh too late.

There is, indeed, a federal power commission but its authority is small and its members (Secretaries of War, the Interior and Agriculture Hurley, Wilbur and Hyde) are too busy with other duties to know more concerning its work than underlings choose to tell them, according to Solicitor Russell, who adds that this enables the power interests to shape power policies mainly to suit themselves.

Obviously, argues Solicitor Russell, an independent, full-time power board similar to the interstate commerce commission, is needed. For that matter, it is in prospect. Russell drafted the bill and Senator Couzens of Michigan is pushing it in congress, which probably will pass it next winter.

But will the new power commission, it and when created by congress and appointed by the president, possess the "adequate authority" specified by Chief Justice Hughes?

A federal commission can regulate only interstate industries.

Most railroads are interstate, but how about power? Though some of it is transmitted across state lines, the bulk of it is consumed not far from where it is generated.

Solicitor Russell reasons thus:

In numerous cases a single big corporation exercises control, in one way or another, over a multiplicity of power-producing concerns scattered throughout many states. Such power really is sold, between states, by the central company to the consumers, with the small local outfits as mere agents.

If Russell can make this contention stick, he will have vested his prospective commission with a lot of authority—but of course the power folk will fight it tooth and toenail.

As Solicitor Russell relates railroad history (into which he delved deeply during his connection with the interstate commerce commission) it is clear enough why Chief Justice Hughes regrets that such an agency, "with adequate authority," was not "established much earlier."

The railroads quite largely were already built when the commission was created, which was in 1887, but it was several years later than that before it was given "adequate authority" to do much regulating.

Regulation consisted principally in fixing fair rates; to determine what rates were fair, it was necessary to ascertain what the roads were making on their investments; to learn what they were making, it was essential to discover the aggregate of their investments—and to this day the commission never has discovered it.

At the outset, the roads undoubtedly fixed their books to indicate construction costs far greater than they were in reality, enabling them to begin by demanding dividends upon countless imaginary millions.

Next they borrowed heavily, presently shuffling their borrowings into the investment total and demanding dividends upon the new, higher basis.

Then followed the consolidation period, signalized by the stiff marking up of the book value of each road included in each merger—with, of course, demands for increased dividends in proportion.

To further complicate the reckoning, there have been at least two major fluctuations (a third appears to be just now beginning) in prices. A certain number of dollars in January, 1914, for instance, meaning something altogether different in purchasing power from the same number of dollars in January, 1930.

Had the interstate commerce commission begun its career when all this hocus-pocus was in its infancy and grown up along with it, perhaps it could have kept up with the figures.

Trying to break into the midst of it!—well, it was hopeless.

Solicitor Russell sees power now as an infant industry—compared with what he expects to see it a few years hence. He wants the prospective power commission put on the job in plenty of season to sit right alongside the cradle and agree with the child on some preliminary bookkeeping.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

TROUBLE IN THE TUNNEL

"Oh, oh, oh!" moaned the stranger in the tunnel. "You told the truth, and I thought you were only boasting. That spear is sharp, and I have wounded myself in the side of my head. Lucky for me I didn't strike my eyes on the point. What a terrible weapon!"

"I told you so!" Peter turned the point of his spear rootward, but held it firmly to use again should there be further need of self-protection. "I am sorry you hurt yourself, stranger, but you should learn not to jump at conclusions. I am a human, but I am—"

Before Peter could finish his explanation, Busy, who heard the commotion and the cry, hurried to the boy's side.

"What in the world is the matter?" demanded she. "Good gracious, haven't we trouble enough already without you two starting more in this dark tunnel? This is one of my trusted scouts, Boy. Doubtless she would not have attacked you if she had been less tired. But she is all worked up and nervous over her job—she has been hard at it for the last hour digging a clear passage through the tunnel! Naturally, when you appeared so unexpectedly, Boy, the poor scout took you for someone you weren't. And Digger, this Two-Legs is one of the best friends the Black Ants have. He is taking the short cut through the tunnel to the back of the hill so that he can watch the enemy's movements and report to me every little while. Maybe, with the boy's help, we shall yet save our nurses and babies. And who knows, perhaps many of the soldiers will make a retreat through the tunnel.

"My error, boy!" cried Digger. "Here, let me escort you through the passage. The sooner you're out of here the better for all concerned!"

Next: "Peter Gets the High Sign."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

— By MRS. MARY MORTON —

MENU HINT

Ham-Potatoes-Vegetables, en Casserole
Shredded Lettuce with Mayonnaise
Hot Rolls Strawberry Jam
Pumpkin Pie with Whipped Cream
Tea

This menu will serve four. It is intended for a luncheon, but there is no reason why it would not serve for dinner or supper.

Today's Recipes

Ham-Potatoes-Vegetables, en Casserole—Place in a casserole in order given, seasoning to taste: Two tablespoons rice, three carrots, sliced fine; one small tomato, five or six potatoes, sliced. Place ham cut in strips on top. Pork chops may be used instead of ham. Fill casserole half full with warm water. Cover, place in the oven for one hour. Remove the cover the last half hour if you wish the meat browned.

Suggestions

Maple Syrup Doughnuts

Beat one egg, add one cup maple syrup, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup sour milk added alternately with two cups flour to which has been added one-half teaspoon soda and two teaspoons baking powder and sifted. Then add nutmeg or vanilla and enough more flour to make a soft dough. This recipe makes two dozen doughnuts.

Non-Rust Hint

If the inside of the lid of a new jar of prepared mustard is covered with melted paraffin it will not rust. Treat the lids of sandwich filler and peanut butter jars the same way.

Water In Wet Pack Nerve Cure

— By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. —

Pindar said, "The best thing is water, the next is gold."

The use of water in the form of the wet pack is valuable for nervous invalids and those troubled with insomnia. It is also used with good effect in many acute contagious diseases, such as pneumonia, scarlet fever and influenza.

To apply it successfully is not difficult.

The patient should be on a single bed. Over the mattress is spread a rubber sheet. Two large woolen blankets, which reach a foot or more beyond the patient's extremities at the end and to the floor on the sides, are laid over this.

A linen sheet wrung out of water at the temperature of 60 or 70 degrees Fahrenheit (the temperature depending on the severity of the case, and the patient's strength) is placed on the blankets.

The patient is laid on this sheet. The patient's arms are raised over his head. One side of the sheet is brought over the body and pressed down between the legs. The arms are then lowered and the other side of the sheet is brought over the body and the arms and tucked in snugly at the neck. The blankets are brought over the body and tucked in all around. The patient must be wrapped in the blankets airtight.

The age long prejudice against wet sheets must be overcome before treatment by the wet pack can be carried out. The first reaction after getting in the pack is a disagreeable shivering feeling. The application of cold to the skin, however, soon brings a reaction and the blood vessels of the skin dilate, warming up the moisture in the sheet. Soon a pleasant tonic feeling of languor supervenes.

During the early period of the pack, before the sheet gets warm, there is a continuous interchange, between the cool blood at the surface and the warm blood of the interior of the body. This amounts to a massage of the circulatory system and is the secret of the value of the wet pack.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. R.: "My query is one regarding marriage. Is it considered all right for second cousins to marry? I consider my mother's aunt's children as my second cousins. Is this correct? Also answer the first question."

Answer. Second cousins and even first cousins marry happily and produce healthy children, so long as the heredity is good. Family diseases, especially mental diseases, tend to be accentuated in the children of such a match. Second cousins are usually considered to be the children in the same generation of first cousins.

What Is This Freedom?

— By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE —

What is this freedom we hear so much about and that everyone yearns for?

Well, from my experience it's one of those things that you think you want more than anything else in the world; but if you get it you find you don't like it at all.

For instance, most of us are tied down every minute with duties galore—work, social engagements, etc. We think if we could have a little free time how happy we would be. We want to read, to write, to "commune with nature and our own souls," we say.

But what happens if we have a little time when there are no pressing duties? Do we do the things we thought we wanted to do? Not at all. We are bored. Books, music, our own thoughts, all the things we thought we wanted, fail to appeal to us. And the most miserable people on earth are those who have nothing to do and no one dependent on them for support or happiness.

"DEAR VIRGINIA: What can I do? Mother won't let me go out with fellows. She tells me I can have one up to the house, and when I tell her I want to ask a fellow up she says no. I'm a sophomore in high school, and a girl nowadays isn't popular unless she's allowed to go out with boys and have a good time.

"My girl friend is allowed to and has more respect for her mother than formerly. I hate to admit it, but I have very little respect for my mother because she nags at me continually. Don't tell me to stay at home until I'm older, because I can't.

"DISCOURAGED."

It's a bit hard to be kept from going out with the boys and girls, and having a good time, I know. I sympathize with you there; but mothers have to be particular, you know. You youngsters don't usually know when to stop going, and consequently your health is harmed. It seems like nagging to you when mother tells you what she thinks, but just wait awhile. When you have more of this freedom that you think you want, you'll probably look back and wish you were home again, and see that "mother was right."

Old stuff, isn't it? But true, nevertheless. If I am not to tell you to be contented to stay at home, and mother won't let you have boy friends, what's the answer? Mine usually is that if you can't do what you want to, do the next best thing, make the best of a situation and get as much fun as possible out of it.

PATSY: Hard as it is when a girl loves the boy friend, I think it is wiser not to phone him and try to make up once she has made it plain that she wants to. If he has gotten over caring for her he is apt to only be annoyed if she tries various ways of getting him back.

Better suffer while you must, and put him bravely out of your life. You won't feel so badly after awhile. Work hard and try to have fun in all the little happenings of every day.

BROWN EYES: Forget about being "backward," and show that you are friendly by speaking pleasantly to the boy and to other schoolmates. As to the other girl, treat her as you would want to be treated if you were in her place.

WORRIED B.: Generally speaking I should say a girl of 17 might be allowed to stay up until 11 or 12 one night a week, provided she doesn't have to go to school next day.

Some good, sensible girls can take care of themselves at a dance, others can't. Best have someone there to whom you can go if anything embarrassing comes up. I should think it better that you and the boy whose religion differs so much from yours should not go together steadily, but there is no reason why two of different nationalities should not be good friends if they are congenial otherwise.

Right Shade Rouge Easy to Choose

— By GLADYS GLAD —

Women of the stage and screen appreciate more keenly the value and importance of harmony than do most women. They study themselves carefully, in order to achieve harmony in the lines of their figures, harmony in their movements, and particularly harmony in their make-up.

I have, in prior articles, repeatedly stressed the fact that cosmetics should blend harmoniously with the natural coloring of the face. And women usually have a fair degree of success in choosing their powder shades and eyeshadow shades.

But they often encounter difficulties when selecting the harmonious shade of rouge for their cheeks. They know that the rouge should match the natural coloring in their cheeks. But the woman who can't remember having seen any tint in her cheeks since she was knee-high to a grasshopper, feels that she has nothing to guide her in selecting her rouge. She indignantly snorts that she cannot be expected to match a cheek coloring that she does not possess!

Nevertheless, there is a very simple method of choosing cheek rouge, and one that will assure you the correct shade for your natural coloring. A famous beauty specialist told me about it. I was present when she asked a dozen of her newest customers to select their rouge by this method, and only two of them chose the shade that the specialist considered an imperfect match.

Cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing method. Then pat your cheeks until your color is high. Don't do it roughly. Pat lightly. The color will rise easily. Then look in the mirror. Take one of the rouge color charts that can be obtained in most beauty shops, and compare the shades with your flushed cheeks. Choose the one that most perfectly matches the color in your cheeks.

Once you have done this, you will not have to repeat it unless you change the kind of rouge you are using. If you should decide to try a different brand of rouge, you will have to match your coloring again, for most manufacturers have different names for the same shades. Also, in later years, you may find that the color of your skin has changed, and you will be obliged to use different tinting for your cheeks and lips. Then again, you may repeat the matching process.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Hands

V. L.: An excellent hand lotion can be made of one part of glycerine and three parts of rose water. Apply a protective coating of cold cream to your hands before exposing them to the elements.

Gaining Weight

Anita A. and Vivian: The method of gaining weight contained in my booklet on "The New Figure" will indeed help to develop and round out the contours of your figure. You are ten pounds underweight.

Height

A Runt and Betty Lillian: I would suggest that you go to a gymnastic school and take stretching and limbering exercises. As you are under 20 years of age, it will help to increase your stature. A long bob will not cut your height.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," if you will write her care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

FREIBURG PASSION PLAY TO BE OFFERED DAYTON NEXT WEEK

Dayton Memorial Hall gets the great Freiburg "Passion Play" for three days commencing November 24, to be brought to that city by the "Youth Division" of the Council of Religious Education. There will be a cast and chorus of 300 and special matinees will be given Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Passion Play is described as a sincere and reverent presentation of the "Passion Week" in the life of Jesus Christ. From far away Freiburg, Germany, the pilgrims of that quaint little village carry their message to the new world, and to all mankind.

Presented under the leadership of George Fassnacht, Sr., with a cast and chorus of several hundred, the "Passion Play" is a religious drama that cannot help but be impressive. It is the sweeping climax of the life of the Son of Man, given in a form that has been maturing for many centuries, and which combines ancient fervor with modern dramatic technique.

The text of the Passion Play remains true to the words and spirit of the Bible, and goes beyond the meager gospels to shed light upon the spirit of the times, and the religious rivalries that finally led Jesus to Calvary. The age-old story reverently unfolds; step by step, the sacred theme, made memorable by those eventful days, when Jesus, King of the Jews, made His triumphal entry into Jerusalem amid the tumult of the crowd, and until He is silently laid away in the darkness of the tomb, this sublime and colassal pageant holds the spectator in prayer locked reverence.

The audience is requested to refrain from any applause and the death like stillness pervades the very atmosphere of this age old story, the saddest and yet the sweetest ever told.

Special attention will be given out of town groups and parties. Headquarters are now open at 217 N. Main St., Dayton. The prices are popular, running from 50c to $3.00.

COURT OF APPEALS SUSTAINS VERDICT

A fine of $100 and costs imposed upon William Lewis, Beavercreek Twp., on a conviction for possessing liquor by Probate Judge S. C. Wright August 28 last was upheld by the Greene County Court of Appeals in a decision announced Thursday.

Authorities who conducted a raid on a barn to which Lewis had access were confronted by a dog, owned by Lewis, tied in a strategic position and supposed to have served as a guard for a corn bin in which a quantity of corn whiskey was afterward uncovered by the raiders.

The appellate court held that since testimony indicated Lewis had access to the barn, a conclusion which is strengthened by the fact the farmer was previously arrested and convicted for possessing liquor, there was sufficient incriminating evidence in the case to warrant the trial court in finding him guilty.

WIFE ASKS DIVORCE IN DAYTON COURTS

In a suit for divorce from John Zimmerman, R. R. No. 2, Xenfa, filed in domestic relations court at Dayton Tuesday, Leni L. Zimmerman, 437 E. Sixth St., Dayton, complains she was compelled to work in the fields as a common laborer in addition to performing her household duties and caring for their five children.

Charging gross neglect of duty, the plaintiff claims her husband called her vile names and declares she was finally forced to leave their home August 8 last.

The mother does not seek custody of the children, being unable to support them at present, but she seeks the right to visit them at the home of her husband's mother in Xenia, where they are now staying.

EIGHTY-NINTH ALARM

Answering the eighty-ninth alarm of the year firemen were summoned to the home of Mrs. Richard Bull, 120 Shawnee St. at 9:38 o'clock Wednesday night to extinguish a small blaze resulting from a flue burning out. No damage resulted.

TEN-YEAR-OLD SHOOTS BROTHER

Ten-year-old Russell Teal, of Glyndon, Md., with the rifle with which he accidentally shot and fatally wounded his four-year-old brother Robert. The accident occurred shortly after the father, John Teal, had returned from a hunting trip. Showing his brother how their dad shot birds, Russell pulled the trigger and Robert fell dead.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre. Adv.

SONG

O! say not woman's heart is bought
With vain and empty treasure.
Oh! say not woman's heart is caught
By every idle pleasure.
When first her gently bosom knows
Love's flame, it wanders never;
Deep in her heart the passion glows,
She loves, and loves for ever.

Oh! say not woman's false as fair,
That like the bee she ranges!
Still seeking flowers more sweet and rare,
As fickle fancy changes.
Ah! no, the love that first can warm
Will leave her bosom never;
No second passion e'er can charm,
She loves, and loves for ever.

Hail! Hail! the Ladies of the House

Election Day brought reversal of political fortune to many who had for years been notable figures in the legislation of the nation. When the next House meets, even though Democrats and Republicans are almost sitting in an even balance, it will boast of feminine leaders of political thought and endeavor who are yearly growing in representation of feminine legislators in affairs of the nation. They are Ruth Pratt, New York; Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts; Florence P. Kahn, Calif.; Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida; Otis Wingo, Arkansas, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey.

PITTSBURGH PLANS MEMORIAL PARK AT HISTORIC SPOT

That historic section of Pittsburgh, "The Point," where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers meet to form the Ohio, site of Fort Duquesne (later Fort Pitt) will become a beautiful national memorial park if the plans of A. Marshall Bell, member of the Allegheny county planning commission, are adopted. He urges that city, county and national government combine to tear down the squalid buildings and railroad yards which occupy "The Point" at present. Artist's visualization of the plan, above, shows (1) national monument, (2) memorial park, (3) proposed town hall, (4) monument site, (5) recreation park (future building site), (6) park (possible boat pageant landing), (7, 8, 9) parking spaces.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Within the next several weeks Cedarville College will turn its attention from football to basketball and a twenty-game schedule for 1930-31 is expected to be announced soon by Marvin Borst. Heidelberg, Xavier, Otterbein, Dayton and Morehead State, Morehead, Ky., are just a few of the schools which will be included on the cage chart, the Cedarville mentor reveals.

The Yellow-Jackets made a good showing on the hardwood last season when competing with teams near their own class, and the school will have a veteran team for the coming season. The only important absentee from last season will be Smith, stalwart center, who was the high scoring backbone of the Borstmen. There will be several promising candidates for the tip-off station, however, so his absence may not be noticed to a great extent.

Antioch College and Wilberforce University will not open their respective court seasons until after the Christmas holidays, officials of the two schools announce. Wilberforce will probably play a schedule calling for many intersectional games, several in Texas, while Antioch's season will be opened by the Division "B" quintet sometime early in January and the Division "A" team will take up the schedule about five weeks later.

The 1931 Miami Valley League basketball season will not be ushered in until January 9, which may be just as well for Xenia Central's prospects of successfully defending the league title it has held continuously for the last three years.

By that time Howard Thompson, who at present has a dislocated shoulder, and Birch Bell, he with the broken thumb, should be in fine shape once more.

In addition another likely basketball prospect will be available for the second semester. Howard Glass, senior, who enrolled at Central High this fall from Beavercreek Twp., was ineligible for athletics during the first semester, but he will be available beginning in January. Having had previous basketball experience he may develop into a player who should be of great help on the squad.

* * *

Here, by the way, is the 1931 league basketball schedule:

Jan. 9—Miamisburg at Greenville; Piqua at Troy; Sidney at Xenia.

Jan. 16—Miamisburg at Piqua; Xenia at Troy.

Jan. 23—Piqua at Greenville; Miamisburg at Xenia; Troy at Sidney.

Jan. 30—Greenville at Sidney; Troy at Miamisburg.

Feb. 6—Greenville at Troy; Sidney at Miamisburg.

Feb. 13—Sidney at Piqua; Xenia at Greenville.

Feb. 20—Xenia at Piqua.

As matters now stand only five major college football teams in the entire country can still lay claim to the distinction of being undefeated and untied this season. Alabama, Utah, Northwestern, Washington State and Notre Dame are still in this select class but if any of them is able to finish the season without a defeat or a tie it will be a miracle. The number will be reduced by at least one next Saturday because Notre Dame meets Northwestern.

BOWLING

It is the same old story. The six-man bowling team composed of R. Smith, A. Boxwell, Moll, Lang, Fuller and Clevenger again won three straight games in the Business Men's League Wednesday night, recording scores of 934, 950 and 894. Box scores:

TICKET SCALPERS GETTING BIG SUMS

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. — Twenty-five deputies of the internal revenue department today waged a war against ticket scalpers who are seeking and getting from 28 to $100 apiece for tickets to the Northwestern-Notre Dame football clash this Saturday.

One visitor from Dallas, Texas, is reported to have paid $350 for four seats yesterday, the highest price yet reported for the pasteboards. Dyche stadium seats 48,000 persons.

Odds stood at 2 to 1 for Notre Dame today after a sudden spurt last night.

THANKSGIVING DAY GAME HERE WILL BE PLAYED IN MORNING

Yielding to popular demand for the change, authorities of Xenia Central and Springfield high schools reached a decision Thursday morning to stage the annual Xenia - Springfield Thanksgiving Day football game at Cox Field here in the morning instead of the afternoon next Thursday.

Originally scheduled for the afternoon of the holiday, it was finally agreed to play the game in the morning, starting at 10 o'clock, due to the number of counter football attractions Thanksgiving Day afternoon in this locality including the Wilberforce-West Virginia State grid classic, which will be played at Wilberforce, marking the first time this traditional struggle has not taken place on a neutral gridiron.

The change in the time of the Xenia-Springfield game was suggested by local high school officials but was not at first acceptable to Springfield, which, however, reconsidered and fell in with the idea Thursday.

The fact the game will be played in the morning will enable Xenians to attend the high school game as well as the Wilberforce contest or any other important grid battle to be played in this locality in the afternoon.

In recent years the annual Springfield-Xenia Turkey Day game, when played at Springfield, has always been staged in the morning to avoid confliction with afternoon grid attractions.

GREENVILLE AND MIAMISBURG MEET IN LOOP TILT SATURDAY

MIAMISBURG, O., Nov. 20—With no game Saturday, Coach E. O. Wright is giving his gridders one week of light drills prior to beginning preparations for the Greenville game which is the last league tilt and the next to last game remaining on the schedule of the Burgers. While league championship dreams are completely laid aside, the Burgers are anxious to keep their hold on second place which is a surety if they win over Greenville.

So far this season, Coach Wright's team has won five and lost three games; two of the games won being league contests while the same number of league games have been lost. A total of 139 points has been scored by Miamisburg while its opponents in the eight games already played have counted fifty-one points.

The contest last Saturday which was taken by Piqua by a 26 to 6 margin was the worst setback of the year, the other two losses coming at the hands of Roosevelt by a 13 to 0 count and Troy by a 6 to 0 score. The most one-sided victories of the year were the 56 to 0 setback handed to West Carrollton and the 53 to 6 win over the Franklin eleven.

Of the two games remaining on the schedule, the Blue and White team is favored in both. Greenville lost a 6 to 0 game to Eaton last week while Fairview was held to a 12 to 12 tie by Dayton Fairmont.

GREENVILLE, Nov. 20.—With nearly two weeks of rest and a 20-12 victory over Arcanum behind it, Greenville will enter its game with Miamisburg Saturday expecting to put everything it has into it. If the Green wins this game and then climaxes its league competition with a win over Sidney in the annual Thanksgiving Day tilt, it will clinch second place in the final league standing.

In the game with Arcanum last week, Greenville won by the score of 20-12. Sink and Engelken, who have been out on account of injuries, were in action during the game. This was the first time Sink has been in uniform since the Troy game. The game was featured by long runs for touchdowns by both teams.

The squad returned to practice this week after a lay-off of four days, and is being sent through intensive drills and scrimmages in preparation for the Miamisburg game Saturday.

OPEN BASKETBALL TICKET SALE SOON

Sales of season tickets for the home games on Xenia Central High's 1930-31 basketball schedule will be started December 1, it is announced by O. B. Bogart, faculty manager of athletics.

Season ducats for adults for the lower floor of the gymnasium will cost $3 and for the balcony they will retail for $2. Student season tickets wil be sold for $1.25.

The Buccaneer schedule calls for nine home games and it is one of the most attractive at-home cards in many years. Home games are with Waynesville, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Columbus Central, Sidney, Springfield, Miamisburg, Eaton and Dayton Stivers in the order named.

Hippo Reinstated

James (Hippo) Vaughn, former star hurler of Chicago Cubs, has been reinstated after seven years of suspension. However, the 43-year-old Vaughn, the first half of that well-known old battery of Vaughn and Killefer, has won his job back only to lose it again, the Cubs indicating they will ask waivers on him.

ARMORY COURT IS READY

GOALS have been erected and the drill room floor marked off for basketball at the new National Guard armory in the Dodds Addition, Captain O. H. Cornwell announced Thursday in issuing a call for members of Company L, 147th Infantry, O. N. G., to turn out for first practice Friday night at 7 o'clock.

All members of the local guard unit desiring to try out for the company's court team are urged to be on hand and bring their gym shoes with them.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. pro basketball team, which has been practicing regularly at the Wilberforce University gymnasium, will hold its first workout on the armory floor Thursday night.

HUNTERS WARNED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Warning hunters, market men and housewives against possible infection, the state health department today declared that at least 1 per cent of all wild rabbits are suffering from rabbit fever, technically known as tularemia.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. — Industrial stock and utilities forged ahead to the best levels of the movement in the first hour today. The rise was halted by a new wave of profit taking and short selling, but not until new advances of a point or more had been recorded in a number of the favorites and practically all of the ground lost in the Monday-Tuesday reaction recovered.

United States Steel was a strong leader for the bulls, advancing more than a point to 148 1-2. Loews forged ahead to 61 3-4 for a gain of two points in anticipation of an increase in the cash dividend either today or later in the year. General Electric reached a new high at 51 1-2 and Chrysler above 19. Consolidated Gas, Columbia, United Corp, United Gas Improvement and other active industrials spurted a point or less.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Within the next several weeks Cedarville College will turn its attention from football to basketball and a twenty-game schedule for 1930-31 is expected to be announced soon by Marvin Borst. Heidelberg, Xavier, Otterbein, Dayton and Morehead State, Morehead, Ky., are just a few of the schools which will be included on the cage chart, the Cedarville mentor reveals.

The Yellow-Jackets made a good showing on the hardwood last season when competing with teams near their own class, and the school will have a veteran team for the coming season. The only important absentee from last season will be Smith, stalwart center, who was the high scoring backbone of the Borstmen. There will be several promising candidates for the tip-off station, however, so his absence may not be noticed to a great extent.

Antioch College and Wilberforce University will not open their respective court seasons until after the Christmas holidays, officials of the two schools announce. Wilberforce will probably play a schedule calling for many intersectional games, several in Texas, while Antioch's season will be opened by the Division "B" quintet sometime early in January and the Division "A" team will take up the schedule about five weeks later.

* * *

The 1931 Miami Valley League basketball season will not be ushered in until January 9, which may be just as well for Xenia Central's prospects of successfuly defending the league title it has held continuously for the last three years.

By that time Howard Thompson, who at present has a dislocated shoulder, and Birch Bell, he with the broken thumb, should be in fine shape once more.

In addition another likely basketball prospect will be available for the second semester, Howard Glass, senior, who enrolled at Central High this fall from Beavercreek Twp., was ineligible for athletics during the first semester, but he will be available beginning in January. Having had previous basketball experience he may develop into a player who should be of great help on the squad.

* * *

Here, by the way, is the 1931 league basketball schedule:

Jan. 9—Miamisburg at Greenville; Piqua at Troy; Sidney at Xenia.

Jan. 16—Miamisburg at Piqua; Xenia at Troy.

Jan. 23—Piqua at Greenville; Miamisburg at Xenia; Troy at Sidney.

Jan. 30—Greenville at Sidney; Troy at Miamisburg.

Feb. 6—Greenville at Troy; Sidney at Miamisburg.

Feb. 13—Sidney at Piqua; Xenia at Greenville.

Feb. 20—Xenia at Piqua.

* * *

As matters now stand only five major college football teams in the entire country can still lay claim to the distinction of being undefeated and untied this season. Alabama, Utah, Northwestern, Washington State and Notre Dame are still in this select class but if any of them is able to finish the season without a defeat or a tie it will be a miracle. The number will be reduced by at least one next Saturday because Notre Dame meets Northwestern.

BOWLING

It is the same old story. The six-man bowling team composed of R. Smith, A. Boxwell, Moll, Lang, Fuller and Clevenger again won three straight games in the weekly match in the Business Men's League Wednesday night, recording scores of 934, 950 and 894. Box scores:

| No. 1 Team | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| R. Smith | 161 | 220 | 150 |
| A. Boxwell | 113 | 123 | 141 |

TICKET SCALPERS GETTING BIG SUMS

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. — Twenty-five deputies of the internal revenue department today waged a war against ticket scalpers who are seeking and getting from 28 to $100 apiece for tickets to the Northwestern-Notre Dame football clash this Saturday.

One visitor from Dallas, Texas, is reported to have paid $350 for four seats yesterday, the highest price yet reported for the pasteboards. Dyche stadium seats 48,000 persons.

Odds stood at 2 to 1 for Notre Dame today after a sudden spurt last night.

Here is Art "Whataman" Shires, as he took unto himself a bride, 18-year-old Elizabeth Greenabaum, in Los Angeles. Superior Judge Hugh J. Crawford is shown performing the ceremony for the eccentric Washington ball player.

THANKSGIVING DAY GAME HERE WILL BE PLAYED IN MORNING

Yielding to popular demand for the change, authorities of Xenia Central and Springfield high schools reached a decision Thursday morning to stage the annual Xenia - Springfield Thanksgiving Day football game at Cox Field here in the morning instead of the afternoon next Thursday.

Originally scheduled for the afternoon of the holiday, it was finally agreed to play the game in the morning, starting at 10 o'clock, due to the number of counter football attractions Thanksgiving Day afternoon in this locality including the Wilberforce-West Virginia State grid classic, which will be played at Wilberforce, marking the first time this traditional struggle has not taken place on a neutral gridiron.

The change in the time of the Xenia-Springfield game was suggested by local high school officials but was not at first acceptable to Springfield, which, however, reconsidered and fell in with the idea Thursday.

The fact the game will be played in the morning will enable Xenians to attend the high school game as well as the Wilberforce contest or any other important grid battle to be played in this locality in the afternoon.

In recent years the annual Springfield-Xenia Turkey Day game, when played at Springfield, has always been staged in the morning to avoid confliction with afternoon grid attractions.

GREENVILLE AND MIAMISBURG MEET IN LOOP TILT SATURDAY

MIAMISBURG, O., Nov. 20—With no game Saturday, Coach E. O. Wright is giving his gridders one week of light drills prior to beginning preparations for the Greenville game which is the last league tilt and the next to last game remaining on the schedule of the Burgers. While league championship dreams are completely laid aside, the Burgers are anxious to keep their hold on second place which is a surety if they win over Greenville.

So far this season, Coach Wright's team has won five and lost three games; two of the games won being league contests while the same number of league games have been lost. A total of 139 points has been scored by Miamisburg while its opponents in the eight games already played have counted fifty-one points.

The contest last Saturday which was taken by Piqua by a 26 to 6 margin was the worst setback of the year, the other two losses coming at the hands of Roosevelt by a 13 to 0 count and Troy by a 6 to 0 score. The most one-sided victories of the year were the 56 to 0 setback handed to West Carrollton and the 53 to 6 win over the Franklin eleven.

Of the two games remaining on the schedule, the Blue and White team is favored in both. Greenville lost a 6 to 0 game to Eaton last week while Fairview was held to a 12 to 12 tie by Dayton Fairmont.

GREENVILLE, Nov. 20.—With nearly two weeks of rest and a 20-12 victory over Arcanum behind it, Greenville will enter its game with Miamisburg Saturday expecting to put everything it has into it. If the Green wins this game and then climaxes its league competition with a win over Sidney in the annual Thanksgiving Day tilt, it will clinch second place in the final league standing.

In the game with Arcanum last week, Greenville won by the score of 20-12. Sink and Engelken, who have been out on account of injuries, were in action during the game. This was the first time Sink has been in uniform since the Troy game. The game was featured by long runs for touchdowns by both teams.

The squad returned to practice this week after a lay-off of four days, and is being sent through intensive drills and scrimmages in preparation for the Miamisburg game Saturday.

OPEN BASKETBALL TICKET SALE SOON

Sales of season tickets for the home games on Xenia Central High's 1930-31 basketball schedule will be started December 1, it is announced by O. B. Bogart, faculty manager of athletics.

Season ducats for adults for the lower floor of the gymnasium will cost $3 and for the balcony they will retail for $2. Student season tickets wil be sold for $1.25.

The Buccaneer schedule calls for nine home games and it is one of the most attractive at-home cards in many years. Home games are with Waynesville, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Columbus Central, Sidney, Springfield, Miamisburg, Eaton and Dayton Stivers in the order named.

Hippo Reinstated

James (Hippo) Vaughn, former star hurler of Chicago Cubs, has been reinstated after seven years of suspension. However, the 43-year-old Vaughn, the first half of that well-known old battery of Vaughn and Killefer, has won his job back only to lose it again, the Cubs indicating they will ask waivers on him.

ARMORY COURT IS READY

GOALS have been erected and the drill room floor marked off for basketball at the new National Guard armory in the Dodds Addition, Captain O. H. Cornwell announced Thursday in issuing a call for members of Company L, 147th Infantry, O. N. G., to turn out for first practice Friday night at 7 o'clock.

All members of the local guard unit desiring to try out for the company's court team are urged to be on hand and bring their gym shoes with them.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. pro basketball team, which has been practicing regularly at the Wilberforce University gymnasium, will hold its first workout on the armory floor Thursday night.

HUNTERS WARNED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Warning hunters, market men and housewives against possible infection, the state health department today declared that at least 1 per cent of all wild rabbits are suffering from rabbit fever, technically known as tularemia.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. — Industrial stock and utilities forged ahead to the best levels of the movement in the first hour today. The rise was halted by a new wave of profit taking and short selling, but not until new advances of a point or more had been recorded in a number of the favorites and practically all of the ground lost in the Monday-Tuesday reaction recovered.

United States Steel was a strong leader for the bulls, advancing more than a point to 148 1-2. Loews forged ahead to 61 3-4 for a gain of two points in anticipation of an increase in the cash dividend either today or later in the year. General Electric reached a new high at 51 1-2 and Chrysler above 19. Consolidated Gas, Columbia, United Corp, United Gas Improvement and other active industrials spurted a point or less.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

OHIO BELL REDEEMS PREFERRED STOCK

CLEVELAND, Nov. 19—Directors of The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., have issued a call for preferred stock for redemption as of January 1, 1931, the next dividend date. The stock is callable on any dividend date at $105.

All stock is to be delivered to the treasurer at 750 Huron Road, Cleveland, and checks will be mailed before December 31, 1930. There are outstanding 282,197 shares of this stock with a total par value of $28,219,700 held by 4,700 stockholders. Dividends have been paid regularly and a final quarterly dividend of $1.75 has been declared. In order to redeem the stock the company has obtained a temporary loan from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., but contemplates no new financing of a permanent nature, it is announced.

MINISTER WILL CONDUCT VESPERS

The Rev. Henry A. Simmons pastor of the Yellow Springs M. E. Church, will be the principal speaker at monthly vesper services at Wilberforce University at 3 p. m. Sunday in Jones Auditorium.

A special musical program has been arranged. Included on the program will be numbers by the freshmen quartet, and the newly organized septette and solos by Miss Edith Burns, R. E. McKenzie, and Ira Williams.

MT. ZION

A rabbit and chicken supper at Mt. Zion Church Saturday evening, Nov. 22 at 6:30 o'clock. Come. Proceeds for the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greer left Tuesday morning for a visit with Mr. Greer's parents in Virginia.

Mrs. Deitz of Belmont visited Mr. and Mrs. Russell Coy and family Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Shoup are entertaining a new boy. They call him Charles Wilbur.

Mr. B. D. Merrick and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dicky and two children Donald and Jack visited at the home of the former's sisters last Sunday.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Charles Kable Thursday afternoon, Dec. 4. The society had a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Sarah and Etta Marie Kable last month. The attendance was good. The society is preparing for Christmas. They also decided to pay the coal bill for the church. After the devotional and business part of the meeting was over, the society was entertained with games by Miss Etta Marie Kable. Those receiving the first prizes were Mrs. William Weiss and Miss Katie Merrick, the second prize, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Helen McCoy. A very nice lunch was served.

KILLS 103 RATS ON NEBRASKA FARM

A Nebraska farmer killed 103 rats in 12 hours with K-R-O (Kills Rats Only), the product made by a special process of squill, an ingredient highly recommended by the U. S. Government. It is sure death to rats and mice but harmless to dogs, cats, poultry or even baby chicks. K-R-O is today America's most widely used rat and mouse exterminator. Sold by druggists on money back guarantee.

. . . it's time to buy

PROSPERITY is not dead in America . . . it has simply been asleep . . . dreaming bad dreams . . . dreams of depression; of the fear of spending . . . the delusion of hoarding. We've been in a lethargy from which only a real alarm could arouse us.

But we've heard the alarm now . . . the alarm of stagnant business; factories with muted machinery and deplorable unemployment . . . and we're ready now to get up and put our dollars to work.

No, Prosperity is not dead. America still has its great natural and industrial resources . . . its tremendous capital reserve. . .fertile lands; immense savings deposits in the banks; the greatest industries in the world; the most skilled workmen; the highest percentage of home-ownership; the highest percentage of literacy; the highest standards of living and the most cultivated desires for the better things in life.

It's time now for us to put activity back of our resources; to indulge our desires; to release the money we have been hoarding . . . in other words to buy so that merchants can move their goods, place orders with the factories for more; enable the factories to employ more men and give to those men in wages the means to buy what you yourself sell or produce.

But we must all do our part in this Buy Now program. Don't wait for "George to do it" or George will wait for us and none of us will get anywhere. You start patronizing George today and George will start buying from Tom, and Tom from Dick and Dick from Harry and Harry from you.

Depression is merely an obession . . . aconfession of fear . . . a compression on the pulse of prosperity that stops the circulation of money. And money is just as important to the life of business as the circulation of the blood is to the human body.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Mme. Anne Pavlova, the world-famous dancer, is deeply shaken by the menace of the "talkies."

"It is terrible," she declares. "Dancing is an art—just as important as music or painting—and yet these 'talkies' are simply killing every other form of artistic endeavor. And all because of this modern craze for novelty."

Pavlova declared that the greatest blow ever dealt to the ballet was the death of Serge Diaghileff.

Asked why she did not take his place she replied, "If it were for the old ballet, I would only be too happy. But the public must have novelty.

"The times are all wrong. Today in all art it is the same, this craze for something exotic, something sensational. The audience for the ballet is small at best, and even they are asking for fresh novelties.

"Then there is the terrible competition of the cinemas," she added. "I do not like film work. To see one's self on the screen is to wish perhaps three-quarters of the film destroyed. My art is on a different sphere. I tried in Hollywood, but I could not be satisfied."

It is an open secret that one producer offered Pavlova $15,000 a week, with a guarantee of ten weeks, if she would reconsider her decision. But she refused.

Only a few days ago a British film company sent complete movietone apparatus to the famous dancer's beautiful home on the outskirts of London, and tried by every means of gentle persuasion to get her to make a "talkie" interview, but she could not be persuaded.

"My art," she told them, "is a silent one, and, like Charlie Chapline, I must not speak."

"Let me tell you," she said, "your native dancers have rhythm and grace, but no support is given them. The whole world should follow the example of the Germans. They consider the ballet an art, and they do all they can to encourage it."

Asked what she considered to be the future of the theatres, she declared, "Who can say. Perhaps we are in process of discovering an entirely new form of entertainment in which everything will have a part.

"But I am certain," she concluded, "that the flesh-and-blood artist will always survive and surmount any mechanical reproduction.

BLACK AND WHITE VOGUE CONTINUES IN FORMAL WEAR—VELVETS GOOD

The magpie color scheme of black and white still holds good, and is shown frequently in formal wearing apparel. At the left above is a dress of black spangles resembling fish scales. Long black gloves are worn with it. At the right is a white taffeta frock with black velvet jacket trimmed with ermine. Second from left is a youthful model with hiplength velvet jacket with wide cuffs of Russian sable; and second from right, a red velvet dress on classic lines with rhinestone shoulder straps. A long white ermine wrap trimmed with silver fox is worn with this frock. These models were shown at the Lido club, Long Beach, L. I.

COMPANY DENIED STATE HOUSE SUIT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Another barrier to progress in the construction of the new state offfce building was hurdled today through the rejection by the Ohio supreme court of the suit of the Fleisher Engineering and Construction Co., of Chicago, which sought to compel the state office building commission to award it the contract for the erection of the office building.

The decision upohlds the action of the commission which, acting upon the advice of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, rejected the company's bid because the bond accompany the bid was $281,000 less than the bid. Ohio laws require that, in such cases, the bond must equal the bid.

COMFORT THE WINTER LAYERS

The popular viewpoint that ventilation of poultry houses is necessary to provide fresh air and to prevent dampness may be disregarded. It is now thought that the main function of ventilation is to maintain the desired uniformity of temperature within the house. Dampness may be regarded as practically harmless when compared to sudden temperature changes, in the opinion of D. C. Kennard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station. This idea was substantiated at the Experiment Station's poultry plant during the winter of 1929 when the ventilators and windows were regulated according to this viewpoint, with the result that the birds were unusually free from respiratory disorders.

A uniform temperature can best be maintained by having poultry houses properly insulated and arranged so that they can easily be shut tight when weather conditions warrant it. New poultry houses are being lined or insulated and older houses are being remodeled to accomplish this.

Winter temperature readings made at the Ohio Experiment Station in non-insulated and insulated poultry houses indicate the value of insulation as an aid in the prevention of radical changes of temperature within the house during cold weather. When the outside temperature ranged between 10 degrees above and 8 degrees below zero, the inside temperature of a non-insulated averaged 14 degrees and of an insulated house 24 degrees above zero. When the outside temperatures were 6 to 8 degrees below zero, the temperature in the non-insulated house averaged 1 to 2 degrees below zero, and in the insulated house 18 to 20 degrees above zero. The difference in favor of insulation may sometimes prevent a loss of winter egg production which might equal, in one season, the entire cost of insulation.

To realize the purpose of insulation, poultry houses without artificial heat or mechanical ventilation must be arranged so as to be closed tight as easily as possible during severely cold weather to prevent the temperature inside from going too low. Then the front ventilators or windows must be opened, in turn as required, to prevent a sudden rise of temperature after weather conditions moderate.

This requires careful attention and good judgment; otherwise serious complications may result. If the caretaker is not in a position to manage properly the closed, insulated house so as to maintain the necessary uniformity of temperature, both day and night, the open front house will probably prove more satisfactory.

FIVE HUNTERS ARE FINED ON CHARGES

Five hunters were given fines of $25 and costs each by A. E. Longstreth, Bath Twp. justice of the peace, when they pleaded guilty to charges Wednesday.

William Haller, Nick Daskalos and John Zakos, all of Dayton, admitted they were hunting on the state game preserve at Antioch College, where they were apprehended by the superintendent and turned over to W. C. Foy, Washington C. H. game protector.

Homer Brickell, near Jamestown and George Hazett, near Trebeins, were fined the same amount after they pleaded guilty to hunting without licenses following arrest by Foy.

GLADYS GLAD AND HELEN WALSH DEMONSTRATE METHODS OF ACHIEVING BEAUTIFUL EYELASHES

The method of achieving beautiful eyelashes is advocated and demonstrated by Gladys Glad, assisted by Helen Walsh, described as the possessor of the most beautiful eyelashes in the theatrical profession.

1. The necessary materials, a bottle of odorless and tasteless castor oil and a small eyebrow brush.

2. Carefully pour a bit of the castor oil on brush.

3. Brush the lashes upward with the castor oil-moistened brush. The eye should be closed during the process to prevent the castor oil from penetrating to the eyeballs.

4. The eventual result—beautiful long, heavy lashes.

COMFORT THE WINTER LAYERS

The popular viewpoint that ventilation of poultry houses is necessary to provide fresh air and to prevent dampness may be disregarded. It is now thought that the main function of ventilation is to maintain the desired uniformity of temperature within the house. Dampness may be regarded as practically harmless when compared to sudden temperature changes, in the opinion of D. C. Kennard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station. This idea was substantiated at the Experiment Station's poultry plant during the winter of 1929 when the ventilators and windows were regulated according to this viewpoint, with the result that the birds were unusually free from respiratory disorders.

A uniform temperature can best be maintained by having poultry houses properly insulated and arranged so that they can easily be shut tight when weather conditions warrant it. New poultry houses are being lined or insulated and older houses are being remodeled to accomplish this.

Winter temperature readings made at the Ohio Experiment Station in non-insulated and insulated poultry houses indicate the value of insulation as an aid in the prevention of radical changes of temperature within the house during cold weather. When the outside temperature ranged between 10 degrees above and 8 degrees below zero, the inside temperature of a non-insulated averaged 14 degrees and of an insulated house 24 degrees above zero. When the outside temperatures were 6 to 8 degrees below zero, the temperature in the non-insulated house averaged 1 to 2 degrees below zero, and in the insulated house 18 to 20 degrees above zero. The difference in favor of insulation may sometimes prevent a loss of winter egg production which might equal, in one season, the entire cost of insulation.

To realize the purpose of insulation, poultry houses without artificial heat or mechanical ventilation must be arranged so as to be closed tight as easily as possible during severely cold weather to prevent the temperature inside from going too low. Then the front ventilators or windows must be opened, in turn as required, to prevent a sudden rise of temperature after weather conditions moderate.

This requires careful attention and good judgment; otherwise serious complications may result. If the caretaker is not in a position to manage properly the closed, insulated house so as to maintain the necessary uniformity of temperature, both day and night, the open front house will probably prove more satisfactory.

C. M. EDDY

C. M. Eddy, secretary of admissions, Denison University, Granville will speak at Xenia Central High School, Wednesday morning, Nov. 26. He will discuss the advisability of going to college, the approximate cost of college and possible means of partial self-support while enrolled.

FIVE HUNTERS ARE FINED ON CHARGES

Five hunters were given fines of $25 and costs each by A. E. Longstreth, Bath Twp. justice of the peace, when they pleaded guilty to charges Wednesday.

William Haller, Nick Daskalos and John Zakos, all of Dayton, admitted they were hunting on the state game preserve at Antioch College, where they were apprehended by the superintendent and turned over to W. C. Foy, Washington C. H. game protector.

Homer Brickell, near Jamestown and George Hazett, near Trebeins, were fined the same amount after they pleaded guilty to hunting without licenses following arrest by Foy.

GLADYS GLAD AND HELEN WALSH DEMONSTRATE METHODS OF ACHIEVING BEAUTIFUL EYELASHES

The method of achieving beautiful eyelashes is advocated and demonstrated by Gladys Glad, assisted by Helen Walsh, described as the possessor of the most beautiful eyelashes in the theatrical profession.

1. The necessary materials, a bottle of odorless and tasteless castor oil and a small eyebrow brush.

2. Carefully pour a bit of the castor oil on brush.

3. Brush the lashes upward with the castor oil-moistened brush. The eye should be closed during the process to prevent the castor oil from penetrating to the eyeballs.

4. The eventual result—beautiful long, heavy lashes.

You feel clean, silky after a bath with this pure, glycerin soap. Its bubbly lather gets down into the pores, rinses out the daily excretions, leaves the skin satin-smooth . . . tingling with healthy cleanness. You'll be amazed how much happier and healthier you feel... how much more popular and charming you seem... when you bathe daily with this stimulating glycerin soap. Keeps your hair, hands and complexion beautiful, too. 10c, all dealers.

J. Elmer Drake Honored As Ohio "Master Farmer"

J. ELMER DRAKE, Yellow Springs, manager of Whitehall Farm, owned by E. S. Kelly, is among eleven Ohio agriculturists to be honored by The Ohio Farmer, Thursday night at Columbus when the degree of "Master Farmer" will be conferred upon them.

This annual honorary degree is bestowed upon farmers showing most marked efficiency in agricultural operations and interest in community activities. Nominations are received from friends, neighbors, county agents and others to a number of more than 100 each year.

The judging committee making the selection consists of C. G. Williams, director of the Ohio Experiment Station; C. E. Rowland, assistant state director of agriculture; and L. L. Rummell, field editor of The Ohio Farmer. Personal visits to the farms were made by the judges to choose the Master Farmers.

The list this year includes:

B. B. Brumley, McComb, Hancock County, livestock feeder and organizer of livestock shipping associations in Ohio.

M. F. Dietrick, Holgate, Henry County, a general farmer with Holstein cattle, hogs and poultry on his 200-acre farm.

J. Elmer Drake, Yellow Springs, Greene Co., is manager of Whitehall Farm, owned by E. S. Kelly, and also owns a farm of 183 acres himself. This is Ohio's largest Hereford cattle establishment, and is one of the State's show places.

Clarence E. Dutton, Milford Center, Union Co., specializes in apples, and has ninety acres bearing.

James W. Fravel, Mt. Vernon, Knox Co., has everything purebred on his farm—Holstein cattle, Duroc hogs, poultry and all farm seeds.

C. C. Huff, Painesville, Lake Co., for twenty-three years has been manager of Parmelee Farm, and this is one of the leading seed farms of Ohio. He also is active in Lake County organizations.

George Lang, New Richmond, Clermont County, has his 122 acres devoted almost entirely to poultry. He has built up his business with thousands of leghorn chickens sold annually, all from an investment of fifty cents in 1912 in a setting of eggs.

A. L. Lockheart, Lexington, Richland Co., manages the 600-acre Willeben Farm, specializing in Holstein cattle and potatoes. He has grown over 500 bushels of potatoes per acre for the last two years.

O. C. McMunn, Lore City, Guernsey County, is a hill farmer, specializing in Jersey cattle. He has a son in partnership now.

M. M. Miesse, Lancaster, Fairfield Co., is a veteran vegetable grower. He helped to organize the national vegetable growers' association.

E. E. Miller, Van Wert, has built up a modern farm after starting in a log cabin there thirty-four years ago. He specializes in Duroc hogs.

Mr. Drake is a farm owner as well as a farm manager. He manages Whitehall Farm, owned by E. S. Kelly, an establishment long known in the annals of Ohio livestock, now the leading Hereford farm in the state. He operated Whitehall farm in 1905-1912, then bought a farm of 183 acres for himself, but in 1922 Mr. Kelly prevailed upon him to return to Whitehall, and there he still is manager, while his son, a graduate of Ohio State University, now operates the home farm.

Whitehall Farm consists of 1100 acres. The Hereford herd numbers around 160 head, headed by some of the great sires of the breed and many are the blues and purples awarded on the show circuit to this herd. Hogs number 300 to 400 head, mostly Hampshire-Yorkshire crosses. Last year a car lot of such crossbreeds won first at the International at Chicago, bred and fed by Mr. Drake. Twice on his own farm Mr. Drake made the Hundred Bushel Corn Club of Ohio.

This is one of Ohio's most beautiful farms. Surrounding the beautiful old home of Mr. Kelly is probably the largest walnut grove in Ohio. The formal gardens, the dahlia garden, the lily pool, the greenhouse and the lawns comprise a rural paradise. Yet with all this great acreage Mr. Drake has been able year after year, even in the past decade of depression, to make this farm show a profit. So successful has he been as a manager, as a livestock breeder and feeder, as an operator of his own farm, that the judges chose him one of the Master Farmers of 1930.

JORETTA A LOVE STORY

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER — Author of "DAD'S GIRL" Etc.

© 1930, Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of one of the biggest merchants in the west. Wise with the wisdom of the modern girl to whom life is an open book, indulged with luxury, yet capable, poised and sensible. She is about to be presented to society in a perfect setting for her golden loveliness, by her socially ambitious mother, who has dominated and managed her daughter. The object of their campaign is Norman Williams, son of a wealthy shipbuilder, from whom Allan Dowling has just bought a yacht. Joretta will christen the new ship at a party that evening. "Uncle Charley" is a second cousin of Allan, a faithful retainer of the household and very fond of Joretta. Norman arrives at the party early, as do Sally, Ruth and Helen, her girl friends. Norman tells Joretta that he got an engineer for the yacht from their plant. His name is Jim Norton. Mrs. Dowling impresses upon Jetty the importance of her marriage to Norman. Allan Dowling is a vain and pompous man, proud of being self-made, with a weakness for adventure. The yacht is launched and during the evening, Norman proposes to Joretta, who accepts him. They decide to tell their parents at once. A strange man in white is in the cabin.

(NOW GO ON WITH STORY)

CHAPTER 5

The four in the Dowlings' salon looked up expectantly with welcoming smiles. The strange man turned about and stepped back beside the table. His first glance was at Norman, whom he recognized with a nod, and in the exchange of greetings and movements which followed, no one observed the startled way he looked at Joretta, except the girl herself. She had stopped suddenly where she stood, but so momentarily that no one was aware of her hesitancy, and her lips parted in a little audible gasp. She was not even conscious of the sound, but a vague sense of unreality, of helplessness, enveloped her.

She seemed to have no voice, no will to move forward. How absurd! Were her emotions so overwrought with what had just occurred out on the deck? Queer, that it would affect her more strangely now than it had then. The impression had passed in an instant, but seemed uncomfortably long and embarrassing to her. Why embarrassing? It was all so stupid.

By this time, the two older men had risen and her father was saying pompously, "Joretta, my dear. Allow me to present the chief engineer of the Montezuma, without whom we should all be at the mercy of the elements. Meet my daughter, Mr. Norton."

They both bowed rigidly and murmured correct phrases and Joretta crossed to a divan beside her mother. Norman spoke:

"Jetty and I have some news for you. If you will excuse us, Norton, we have a little family conference, and then you may proceed with spark plugs and manifolds to your entire satisfaction."

The engineer bowed and left the room instantly.

Norman turned to Joretta. "You tell them, dear."

She smiled wanly, looked at him with a bewildered expression, as if she hadn't seen him before. Allan Dowling stepped into the situation, magnanimously.

"You don't either of you need to say a word. Can't we all see what they're going to tell us?" he beamed at his wife and Williams. "You have my blessing. Congratulations, Norman, I knew you'd do it," wringing his hand heartily and clapping him on the back, his long black cigar shifting to the corner of his wide mouth, his head thrown back in line with his protruding abdomen.

"Is it true, Jetty? You and Norman—?" Mrs. Dowling gushed over her daughter, as if she hadn't thought of such a thing.

"Yes, we've just decided that we—want to announce it tonight," quietly.

Williams clasped her hand tightly in his two big ones. He was not so demonstrative as Dowling. "Never so pleased over anything in my life, Jetty. You can keep him in tow if anyone can. It takes a little maneuvering tug any time to get a big liner into port without mishap. Bless you, daughter."

Joretta was radiant, starry-eyed; Norman triumphant and possessive. Joretta liked the commotion and attention she had created but she evaded being alone with Norman again that night until the Montezuma nosed her way into the harbor again and they started on the drive home.

Norman startled her.

She couldn't have told anyone why. A vague sense of panic and helplessness seized her—well, she didn't know when, unless it was after they had emerged from that half-hour of romantic oblivion and entered the brilliantly lighted salon. Again, she felt timid and ill-at-ease with Norman, perhaps because he dominated her so, was so sure of himself and of her. He was five years older and had gone far in five years. She would understand him better after a while.

If their engagement had caused a commotion among the guests on the yacht, it had created a furor in the thoughts of a certain white-uniformed engineer. Jim Norton never knew just how he escaped from that room when Williams had suavely dismissed him. Dazedly, he made his way to the engine room and stood there staring at the gleaming shafts and bearings moving rythmically and smoothly in oil. Stared at them—and saw a beautiful white face framed in a white fur collar, shining blue eyes, wind-blown golden hair.

His assistant looked at him queerly. Don't tell me this ship's ha'nted, boss. Might be it it was an old pirate tub, but she's brand new."

Jim laughed, with a hollow note. "Not ghosts, Ben. Angels."

Ben roared. "Angels aplenty on this little ship tonight. More like, little devils with angels' feathers. Cute babies, all right, but not the kind for us, boss. Angel feathers cost money—and I don't mean maybe." Then, as a resounding shout came suddenly from above, "Sumpin' more broke loose. Must have opened another case." He shrugged. "More power to 'em. More power is right. Power and speed. Power makes speed, in boats or anything.

Jim smiled weakly, his eyes still not seeing what was before them. Dowling's voice from above startled him back to reality. "Norton, can you come up again?"

Returning to the salon again, Dowling explained jovially, "That little interruption of our parley proved to be a big event. I've launched two ships tonight. Just announced my daughter's engagement to young Williams. A splendid match. Just what we've all wanted to happen. Now about what we were discussing—"

"Well, he's doing better than his brother, all right."

"What's that?" Dowling demanded sharply, removing the cigar from his mouth. "Norman Williams has no brother. Only heir to the Williams fortune."

"Oh! My mistake then. Must have him mixed up with another Williams," hastily. "It was just my impression that the younger Williams was already married."

Dowling guffawed, replaced his cigar with a wide gesture. "Not yet, Norton, not yet. But he will be soon. My wife will manage that. That's why I need this ship to fool around with. She's got the girl to take up her time and I need diversion, too. Now how much time were you figuring for that run down to Ensenada?"

"About fifteen hours, average. Planning to go down there, sir?"

"Yes—often. But what goes on on this ship is nobody's business, you understand?" He squinted his eyes and commanded Jim's for a full half minute.

"Of course," Norton assented, and dismissed the incident at once. More important problems occupied his mind just now—and one of them was Joretta Dowling.

"Everything okay, Norton? We want to keep an eye on her for awhile, so report how she acts, will you?"

"I will. Couldn't be smoother now." He turned to Joretta. "Hope you had a pleasant evening."

"Oh, marvelous, Mr. Norton. Didn't we sound happy?" she laughed. His hat was off; she noticed the neatly brushed sleek black hair; and the hands which held his white linen cap by its gold-decorated visor; lean, strong, brown, yet the kind of hands which could be so gentle—

Joretta observed that Norman's hand was a bit shaky when he inserted the key into the lock, and again when he fired his cigarette before they started. It was almost three o'clock. What a long, eventful day it had been. She felt as if she had crowded into one day what should have covered a long period in her life.

Since she had made her entry into the adult world at four o'clock that afternoon, she had been traveling in high speed, certainly. If she kept on at that pace, she would get pretty far before old age slowed her down. How far was there to go? The idea amused her. Perhaps you always went in circles and the faster you went, the more times you reached the same point and started over, like going around the world.

Norman startled her from her reverie by slowing the car to the roadside, shutting off the motor and drawing her closer with his arm.

JORETTA A LOVE STORY

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER Author of "DAD'S GIRL" Etc.

© 1930, Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of one of the biggest merchants in the west. Wise with the wisdom of the modern girl to whom life is an open book, indulged with luxury, yet capable, poised and sensible. She is about to be presented to society in a perfect setting for her golden loveliness, by her socially ambitious mother, who has dominated and managed her daughter. The object of their campaign is Norman Williams, son of a wealthy shipbuilder, from whom Allan Dowling has just bought a yacht. Joretta will christen the new ship at a party that evening. "Uncle Charley" is a second cousin of Allan, a faithful retainer of the household and very fond of Joretta. Norman arrives at the party early, as do Sally, Ruth and Helen, her girl friends. Norman tells Joretta that he got an engineer for the yacht from their plant. His name is Jim Norton. Mrs. Dowling impresses upon Jetty the importance of her marriage to Norman. Allan Dowling is a vain and pompous man, proud of being self-made, with a weakness for adventure. The yacht is launched and during the evening, Norman proposes to Joretta, who accepts him. They decide to tell their parents at once. A strange man in white is in the cabin.

(NOW GO ON WITH STORY)

CHAPTER 5

The four in the Dowlings' salon looked up expectantly with welcoming smiles. The strange man turned about and stepped back beside the table. His first glance was at Norman, whom he recognized with a nod, and in the exchange of greetings and movements which followed, no one observed the startled way he looked at Joretta, except the girl herself. She had stopped suddenly where she stood, but so momentarily that no one was aware of her hesitancy, and her lips parted in a little audible gasp. She was not even conscious of the sound, but a vague sense of unreality, of helplessness, enveloped her.

She seemed to have no voice, no will to move forward. How absurd! Were her emotions so overwrought with what had just occurred out on the deck? Queer, that it would affect her more strangely now than it had then. The impression had passed in an instant, but seemed uncomfortably long and embarrassing to her. Why embarrassing? It was all so stupid.

By this time, the two older men had risen and her father was saying pompously, "Joretta, my dear. Allow me to present the chief engineer of the Montezuma, without whom we should all be at the mercy of the elements. Meet my daughter, Mr. Norton."

They both bowed rigidly and murmured correct phrases and Joretta crossed to a divan beside her mother. Norman spoke:

"Jetty and I have some news for you. If you will excuse us, Norton, we have a little family conference, and then you may proceed with spark plugs and manifolds to your entire satisfaction."

The engineer bowed and left the room instantly.

Norman turned to Joretta. "You tell them, dear."

She smiled wanly, looked at him with a bewildered expression as if she hadn't seen him before. Allan Dowling stepped into the situation, magnanimously.

"You don't either of you need to say a word. Can't we all see what they're going to tell us?" he beamed at his wife and Williams. "You have my blessing. Congratulations, Norman, I knew you'd do it," wringing his hand heartily and clapping him on the back, his long black cigar shifting to the corner of his wide mouth, his head thrown back in line with his protruding abdomen.

"Is it true, Jetty? You and Norman—?" Mrs. Dowling gushed over her daughter, as if she hadn't thought of such a thing.

"Yes, we've just decided that we—want to announce it tonight," quietly.

Williams clasped her hand tightly in his two big ones. He was not so demonstrative as Dowling. "Never so pleased over anything in my life, Jetty. You can keep him in tow if anyone can. It takes a little maneuvering tug any time to get a big liner into port without mishap. Bless you, daughter."

Joretta was radiant, starry-eyed; Norman triumphant and possessive. Joretta liked the commotion and attention she had created but she evaded being alone with Norman again that night until the Montezuma nosed her way into the harbor again and they started on the drive home.

She couldn't have told anyone why. A vague sense of panic and helplessness seized her—well, she didn't know when, unless it was after they had emerged from that half-hour of romantic oblivion and entered the brilliantly lighted salon. Again, she felt timid and ill-at-ease with Norman, perhaps because he dominated her so, was so sure of himself and of her. He was five years older and had gone far in five years. She would understand him better after a while.

If their engagement had caused a commotion among the guests on the yacht, it had created a furor in the thoughts of a certain white-uniformed engineer. Jim Norton never knew just how he escaped from that room when Williams had suavely dismissed him. Dazedly, he made his way to the engine room and stood there staring at the gleaming shafts and bearings moving rythmically and smoothly in oil. Stared at them—and saw a beautiful white face framed in a white fur collar, shining blue eyes, wind-blown golden hair.

His assistant looked at him queerly. Don't tell me this ship's ha'nted, boss. Might be it it was an old pirate tub, but she's brand new."

Jim laughed, with a hollow note. "Not ghosts, Ben. Angels."

Ben roared. "Angels aplenty on this little ship tonight. More like, little devils with angels' feathers. Cute babies, all right, but not the kind for us, boss. Angel feathers cost money—and I don't mean maybe." Then, as a resounding shout came suddenly from above, "Sumpin' more broke loose. Must have opened another case." He shrugged. "More power to 'em. More power is right. Power and speed. Power makes speed, in boats or anything.

Jim smiled weakly, his eyes still not seeing what was before them. Dowling's voice from above startled him back to reality. "Norton, can you come up again?"

Returning to the salon again, Dowling explained jovially, "That little interruption of our parley proved to be a big event. I've launched two ships tonight. Just announced my daughter's engagement to young Williams. A splendid match. Just what we've all wanted to happen. Now about what we were discussing—"

"Well, he's doing better than his brother, all right."

"What's that?" Dowling demanded sharply, removing the cigar from his mouth. "Norman Williams has no brother. Only heir to the Williams fortune."

Norman startled her.

"Oh! My mistake then. Must have him mixed up with another Williams," hastily. "It was just my impression that the younger Williams was already married."

Dowling guffawed, replaced his cigar with a wide gesture. "Not yet, Norton, not yet. But he will be soon. My wife will manage that. That's why I need this ship to fool around with. She's got the girl to take up her time and I need diversion, too. Now how much time were you figuring for that run down to Ensenada?"

"About fifteen hours, average. Planning to go down there, sir?"

"Yes—often. But what goes on on this ship is nobody's business, you understand?" He squinted his eyes and commanded Jim's for a full half minute.

"Of course," Norton assented, and dismissed the incident at once. More important problems occupied his mind just now—and one of them was Joretta Dowling.

"Everything okay, Norton? We want to keep an eye on her for awhile, so report how she acts, will you?"

"I will. Couldn't be smoother now." He turned to Joretta. "Hope you had a pleasant evening."

"Oh, marvelous, Mr. Norton. Didn't we sound happy?" she laughed. His hat was off; she noticed the neatly brushed sleek black hair; and the hands which held his white linen cap by its gold-decorated visor; lean, strong, brown, yet the kind of hands which could be so gentle—

Joretta observed that Norman's hand was a bit shaky when he inserted the key into the lock, and again when he fired his cigarette before they started. It was almost three o'clock. What a long, eventful day it had been. She felt as if she had crowded into one day what should have covered a long period in her life.

Since she had made her entry into the adult world at four o'clock that afternoon, she had been traveling in high speed, certainly. If she kept on at that pace, she would get pretty far before old age slowed her down. How far was there to go? The idea amused her. Perhaps you always went in circles and the faster you went, the more times you reached the same point and started over, like going around the world.

Norman startled her from her reverie by slowing the car to the roadside, shutting off the motor and drawing her closer with his arm.

Mrs. H. C. Witwer, widow of the humorous writer, has won a technical victory over Harold Lloyd, motion picture actor and producer.

Mrs. Witwer contended that Lloyd's picture, "The Freshman" was taken from her husband's story, "The Emancipation of Rodney." In ruling in favor of Mrs. Witwer the court held that Lloyd was "unintentionally guilty of plagiarism" and ordered the comedian to make an accounting of receipts of the picture on which to base judgment, which is expected will be only for a small amount.

MRS. H. C. WITWER

Witwer was the author of the Leather Pusher series and other short stories which were made in series of two-reel motion pictures before the talkies took the field.

• • •

Phillips Holmes, who has been given one of the most important film roles of the year as the hero in Theodore Dreisier's "An American Tragedy" is the son of Taylor Holmes.

The younger has rapidly come to the front. As the idealistic farm boy in "The Devil's Holiday" he gave a sensitive performance and in "Her Man" he scores his biggest success as a romantic vagabond who sails the seven seas.

Sergei M. Eisenstein is the director of the film to be made from the Dresier novel, and his selection is less popular. An incongruity appears in the fact that a Russian is chosen to direct "An American Tragedy."

• • •

Warner Bros'. plan for speeding up production of "Fifty Million Frenchmen" seemed to work satisfactorily. There were two companies working on the picture, one being directed by Lloyd Bacon, who did the main job while May Enright had charge of the second company. Since all the principles did not appear in every episode, the plan worked out as intended.

• • •

A survey indicates that motion picture people in Hollywood are not quite holding their own against the Broadway invasion. Ten companies investigated have 141 contract players drafted from the stage against 135 who have picture experience only. The main strongholds of the film players are at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer where the proportion is two to one and at RKO where the proposition is four to one. At Fox, stage people predominate by three to one and both Warners and Pathe have twice as many stage players as film people. Many of the stage people have become big stars in the talkies including Will Rogers, Maurice Chevalier, Chester Morris, Walter Huston, Ruth Chatterton, Lawrence Tibbett, Ann Harding, Robert Woolsey, Bert Wheeler and George Arliss. The films however, boast of Davies, Baxter, Rogers, Cooper, Arlen, Oakie, Shearer, Colman, Garbo, Gilbrey, Crawford, Boles, Daniels, Dix and Barthelmess.

Twenty Years '10- Ago -'30

Although the high school football team was defeated Saturday by Washington C. H., it has not lost hope and is practicing hard for the annual alumni game on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Jonas Bailey, Collier St., returned home after a week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kent, and family, of Newcastle, Ind.

A friend of Mr. Elbert Babb, who is a student at Denison, had a card from him stating that he was one of two students out of twenty to try, who made the Denison Press Club.

Sheriff-elect W. B. McCallister announced the appointment of Frank Jackson, Cedarville, as his deputy.
